'TAY PAY,' DEAN OF PARLIAMENT, TAKEN BY DEATH

Fought to Free Irish; Once on Tribune.

LONDON, Nov. 18 (Monday).—(AP)—T. P. O'Connor, "father of the house of commons," died at 3:16 a. m. He was 81 years old. The famous Irish nationalist had been confined to his bed for 10 days with a septic condition in one of his legs.

TAY PAY'S CAREER

Thomas Powell [Tay Pay] O'Connor, known as the "father of the house of commons" by virtue of 49 consecutive years as a member of that body, lived 81 years of a life devoted to "decreasing the sum of human unhappiness."

Being a member of the house did not deter "Tay Pay" from continuing his journalistic career. He founded The Star, edited it for a while and then moved from it to found the Sun and Weekly Sun which he edited for a number of years. In this paper he had a column called "M. A. P.," standing for "Mostly About People," which was filled with intimate details about prominent figures of the day, gossip, comment and quotation. The interest in this column led Mr. O'Connor to found a weekly "M. A. P. run on the same lines."

Tay Pay's best known paper was The Star, which he founded in 1870. He suspended the publication only recently when forced to do so by ill health.

Known Three Modest Generations.
Besides his journalistic work in England Mr. O'Connor has acted as foreign correspondent for American papers. "Tay Pay" was a member of The Tribune foreign staff for a number of years, starting as a special writer in 1910 and contributing by cable until the end of 1915. Mr. O'Connor always said on his numerous trips to Chicago that he felt at home there. When here in 1917 he said:

DADS' DAY HAS AFTERMATH OF FOUR ARRESTS

May Padlock Home of Twenty Students.

Champaign, Ill., Nov. 17.—[Special.]—With several thousand fathers of University of Illinois students on the campus attending the annual Dads' day festivities, which started Friday and continued through today, Sheriff Elmer Shoaff and his deputies at 2 o'clock this morning raided a fraternity house, made four arrests, and seized ten gallons of alcohol.

The fraternity raided is the Gamma Eta Gamma, located within three blocks of the university proper, where there existed, according to the authorities, a "collegiate bootlegging establishment." The ten gallons of alcohol was found stored in a trunk. In addition, the deputies obtained other varieties of liquor which were found in small bottles scattered in practically every room of the building.

Three Members of Fraternity. Of the four students arrested, three were seized at the fraternity house. William Sherman, Crown Point, Ind.; Alfred J. Withers, Elmhurst, Minn.; and Ernest Longhorns, Marion, Ill., members of the fraternity and all students in the college of law were charged with illegal possession and selling of liquor and placed in the county jail. The raid on the fraternity house resulted after a student, B. W. Hoare, was arrested earlier in the night in possession of a quart of liquor. It is said he informed Sheriff Shoaff and his deputies where he had obtained the liquor.

The deputies awakened the sleeping fraternity boys at 2 o'clock and searched the house room by room while the pajama clad inhabitants remonstrated in vain. Sheriff Shoaff said they found "a pint here and a pint there" until they came upon a trunk in one room which contained the ten gallons of liquor.

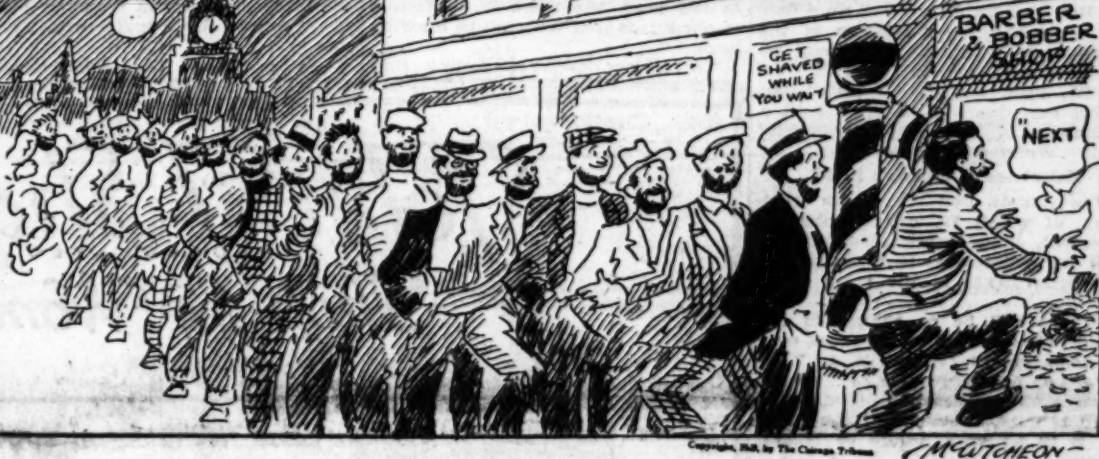

Obtained Search Warrant. Last night when the deputies were told that the liquor had been purchased at the Gamma Eta Gamma house, the sheriff obtained a search warrant immediately. He said tonight that other occupants of the house had been buying liquor for $12 a gallon and then selling it to fellow students at a profit of $20 per gallon.

Of the 20 arrested at the fraternity house Sherman was held under $1,500 bonds, the other two $1,000 bonds. It is quite probable they will be given a preliminary hearing next Friday.

Longhorns was released tonight on $1,000 bond, given by B. F. Leonard, a Champaign attorney. The other two fraternity students are still confined in jail.

Several members of the fraternity, it is stated, secured permission to go to the Northwestern-Illinois football game at Evanston several weeks ago, but instead of attending the game, they went elsewhere and returned with liquor.

THE FUZZY MARTYRS OF INDIANA UNIVERSITY CELEBRATE THEIR DELIVERANCE

Mrs. P. J. Carr Is Dead After Long Sickness

Mrs. Agnes Carr, widow of Patrick J. Carr, the former county treasurer and leading Democratic politician, died at 6 o'clock this morning in her home, 7612 Division street, River Forest. She had been near death for several weeks with heart disease, and kidney trouble.

According to her physician, Dr. Harry Singer, her health had never been good since her husband died three years ago, just after he had been elected sheriff of Cook county by an unprecedented majority, but before he took the office.

With Mrs. Carr at the time of her death were her two brothers, Joseph S. and James W. McAuley; her sister, Mrs. Elizabeth Bonn; her daughter, Margarette, 16 years old, and Miss Marie Hart, a young woman whom the Carrs had raised.

Dr. Karl Meyer and Dr. Singer spent the night with the stricken woman, who had been unconscious for a week. Mrs. Carr was 47 years old and was a daughter of Michael McAuley, former alderman from the old 5th ward. The McAuleys were an old family on the southwest side of Chicago and always active in civic and political affairs.

Arrangements for the funeral have not been made further than that the services will be held in St. Luke's church, River Forest.

ROBBERS GET $12,000 LOOT IN GOLD COAST FLAT

Burglars broke into the apartment of William Alfred Gardner, wealthy retired stock broker, at 1366 Dearborn parkway while the family was absent yesterday afternoon and stole a large oriental rug, jewelry, and silverware worth more than $12,000. The robbery was discovered when Mrs. Gardner and her daughter, Mary, returned from a week-end trip last night. Mr. Gardner was in New York.

The burglar mounted to the apartment, which is on the twelfth floor, by a service elevator in the rear of the building and kicked a small panel out of the rear door, enabling them to reach in and unlock the door. They then jimmied a door leading from the pantry into the main part of the house.

BODY OF "RIDE" VICTIM FOUND IN FIELD AT GARY

The body of a well dressed middle aged man, shot once through the throat, was found yesterday in a swampy field near the end of Bridge street in Gary. The Gary police believed that he was a Chicago gangster who had been "taken for a ride." He had been dead only a short time.

There were no marks of identification in the clothing, all of the pockets having been turned out and apparently emptied by the slayers, who left only a Chicago Yellow cab receipt, a watch, a pendul, and $5.00 in his clothing.

Good Sinking; End Expected at Any Time

Washington, Nov. 18.—(AP)—The White House was informed by Walter Reed hospital at 7:10 a. m. today that Secretary Good was "sinking very fast" and that hope had practically been abandoned for his recovery.

BULLETIN.

Washington, D. C., Nov. 18.—(Monday).—(Special).—No further announcement regarding Secretary Good's condition had come at 3 a. m. at 1:30 one of the surgeons said that the end might not come until late this morning. Oxygen and heart stimulants are being administered to keep the patient alive.

BULLETIN.

Washington, D. C., Nov. 18.—(Special).—Secretary of War James W. Good passed into the shadow of death early this morning. Shortly after midnight it was stated at Walter Reed hospital that the life of the distinguished patient hung by a slender thread and that the end was expected within a few hours.

President Hoover remained in close touch with the hospital till after midnight. Twice during the day he had manifested a desire to go to the bedside of his war minister and bid him a last farewell. He was dissuaded by the physicians who feared the effect upon the dying man.

Reports to Hoover. Lieutenant Commander Joel T. Boone, the President's physician, was in constant attendance at the hospital and made two personal reports to Mr. Hoover during the day on the condition of Mr. Good.

EXPANSION PLANS TOLD; INDUSTRY FORGES AHEAD

HOOVER BUSINESS BOOM PARLEY TO OPEN TOMORROW

BY ARTHUR SEARS HENNING.

(Chicago Tribune Press Service.)
Washington, D. C., Nov. 17.—The commercial, industrial, financial and labor organizations of the country are to be called upon by President Hoover in personal conferences beginning this week to take steps to avert a business depression and to safeguard prosperity.

This, it became known today, is the general line on which the President intends to proceed in his effort to stabilize the economic life of the country, which has been dislocated by the ory of speculation in Wall street, ending with the recent collapse of the stock market.

What the President hopes to accomplish is the revival of manufacturing, building construction, and other activities which have been slowed down by the attraction of capital to stock market speculation.

Plans No Super-Organization. Nothing in the nature of a super-organization is to be attempted by the President to deal with the economic situation, because he does not believe the situation requires such heroic treatment, but he does have in mind the creation of some sort of clearing house or other device among the business and manufacturing associations for coordinating the measures to be taken to boom production. Organized business is to be asked to organize still further in the cause of saving prosperity.

In the next fortnight Washington will be the scene of the gathering of big men in industry, transportation, agriculture, labor, commerce, finance and other fields of activity, who will sit down with the President and discuss ways and means of getting American business back to normalcy after the speculation spree.

Mr. Hoover already has telegraphed invitations to more than 100 of the outstanding leaders in the production of goods and services to Washington for these conferences with the chief executive and their acceptance are being awaited in the White House.

Schedule of Meetings. The presidential conferences so far arranged are the following: Tuesday — Railroad presidents to meet with Mr. Hoover. Wednesday — Officials of the Chamber of Commerce of the United States and leaders in manufacturing, distribution, and the larger public utilities, to meet with Mr. Hoover and Secretary of Commerce Robert F. Lamont. Thursday — Leaders of farm organizations and others prominent in agriculture to meet with Mr. Hoover. Friday — Secretary of Agriculture Arthur M. Hyde, and Alexander Legge, chairman of the federal farm board.

Later, possibly on Friday, the leaders of organized labor will meet with Mr. Hoover and Secretary of Labor James J. Davis. Conferences with other groups will be arranged for later dates.

Because of the short notice given, the delegation of railroad presidents which will confer with the President on Tuesday will not be wholly representative of the country. About a dozen executives of eastern railway systems will be here on their way to Chicago for the meeting of the American Railway association on Friday.

What Mr. Hoover particularly wishes to discuss with the railroad heads is the possibilities of their insuring a general program of (Continued on page 4, column 1.)

Stock Market Fall Does Not Affect Nation's Assets, Leaders Say.

BY JOHN BOETTIGER.

E. J. Buffington, president of the Illinois Steel company, was the first to be interviewed by a reporter for THE TRIBUNE in pursuit of an answer to the question whether Chicago's basic industries are advancing or retarding production, building, expansion, and promotion. Men who direct the investment of hundreds of millions of dollars were approached for a verdict on the financial situation; whether the stock market crash can be discounted in the continued prosperity of American business, or, assuming a dark future, will so called business men be waiting away their capital funds, waiting for brighter days before undertaking new expansions?

"Are we holding back?" mused Mr. Buffington. "Well, we are now launched in and going swiftly ahead with the greatest program of expansion in our history."

What Steel Company Is Doing. "At South Chicago we are building fourteen open hearth furnaces, a new beam mill, a new slabbing mill, two plate mills, and a new alloy bar mill. In the Gary works we are building seven open hearth furnaces, a 15 inch strip mill, a blooming mill, and two batteries of by-product coke ovens of 10 ovens each."

"Along with these we are building additional power producing equipment for each works."

Some seventy-five millions will be spent for these additions.

"What does all this mean, translated into production of steel?" Mr. Buffington was asked.

"It adds two and a half million tons of ingots to the present annual capacity of the Illinois Steel company," he replied. "And that is equivalent to an increase of more than 20 per cent in the present output of steel in the entire Chicago district."

Wetmore, senior chairman of the board, "is ready, as it has always been, to supply capital to worthy business enterprises, for expansion, enlargement, new building programs, and so on. We have been more anxious to support business men in these plans, rather than speculators in the stock market."

"I cannot see the slightest reason for business men to hold up on their ambitious plans. There is ample reason to expect a resurgence in many lines of business. A lot of building by public utilities and others which require financing by sale of bonds has been held up because every one was buying stocks and no one would buy bonds. Money will be available for these purposes now."

"This stock market crash has been overemphasized. When you consider the great population of the United States, there are relatively few who were concerned by stock market losses. While these have lost money, the rest of the country has stayed about the same."

"It is especially obvious that the people are going to keep on eating, wearing clothes, riding in automobiles, living in houses, and enjoying life."

The Tribune's Program.

Back on the street the reporter wonders what his own institution has in mind.

Col. Robert R. McCormick, publisher of The Tribune, is talking over the plans for new construction in Tribune Square with Holmes Onderdonk, manager of Tribune properties.

"We're going to carry on," says Col. McCormick. "On Monday morning the machine will be in the basement of our north building, beginning the installation of sixteen new press units and three new folders. They will cost $500,000, and they represent just a starter in a line of new presses to include 42 units and 8 folders."

"Our presses now turn out an average of about 160,000 *TRIBUNE*s an hour, but by March 1, when the six new units will have been installed, our capacity will be 220,000 an hour."

"We will hold our present circulation and gain many new readers. Our plans for extension of our news service and betterment of our features will go on. There is no reason to stop. A few people, proportionately, have lost money in the stock market. It's too bad, but no others have lost anything. Stock certificates have the same assets behind them today as before."

Plan Addition to Tower.

"The TRIBUNE architects, John Mead Howells and Raymond M. Hood, are now engaged in preparing the working drawings for the new addition to Tribune Tower. As soon as they are ready, we'll order the steel and set the hammer pounding. What are the details on this building, Mr. Onderdonk?"

"It is to be 22 stories high," replied Mr. Onderdonk. "It will stretch 118 feet on Michigan boulevard, joining the north side of the Tower, and will extend 100 feet on Illinois street. The cost of this addition will be $3,000,000."

"Before it is finished we shall have started on the plans for relocating the present plant on the southeast corner of Tribune Square, to cost another $4,000,000."

"The Tower is now 100 per cent rented, and we are crowded for space."

A Railroad President's Opinion.

"Railroads carry the products of industry, so a railroad president is vitally interested in the answer as provided by transportation."

"We have canvassed the present situation with greatest care," says Fred W. Sargent, president of the Chicago and North Western, and he adds slowly, letting the words sink in: "We will make no curtailment whatever in our plans."

"Our budget for 1930 will be slightly larger than for this year. We are spending from $3,000,000 to $10,000,000 for new cars, engines and other equipment."

"A new freight station will be built at the site for the new Merchandise Mart, to cost $2,000,000. Other extensions in building improvements in the city of Chicago will cost between $4,000,000 and $5,000,000. We are elevating tracks on the lines to Barrington and Maywood and in the city of Kenosha at a cost of $5,000,000."

"What about the other railroads?" W. R. Storey, president of the Santa Fe, says:

"We have a very large program, and we shall not alter it in the least. We are placing our largest order for equipment in many years, amounting to seventeen or eighteen million dollars. We have applied to the interstate commerce commission for permission to build over 500 miles of new road, more than in any year before. The commission has given authority to build 150 miles of this new track, and we are now busy at the job."

"What about the hurry in the stock market?"

"What about it? We are going to spend more than $20,000,000 for enlarged yards, additional trackage and similar facilities. Business is going to demand this increase and we will be ready."

Mail Order House Goes Ahead.

Chain stores and mail order houses—there's a line that ought to be represented in a story about business and the effect of the bear raid. George B. Everitt, president of Montgomery Ward & Co., is approached.

"We are going right through with our plan of expansion as though there never was a stock market," says Mr. Everitt. "We purchased and opened 250 new stores in the United States this year, and we will open another 200 in the coming year. We have received a hundred million dollars from our stockholders for this expansion, and we are not stopping a minute."

"We have just opened a major department store in San Diego, and another will be opened in Des Moines shortly. Before the next year is out we will have department stores operating in Detroit, Philadelphia, Buffalo, Omaha, and elsewhere."

"But isn't business in danger, Mr. Everitt?"

"O, we are not pleased with the stock people received. But the people are resilient, and by the time we get these stores opened they will be ready to buy. There is nothing to dismay us in the condition of the market."

Buy New Wholesale House.

And this from the president of Butler Brothers, Frank S. Cunningham:

"We have just consummated the purchase of a new wholesale house in Baltimore. Our wholesale trade is going right ahead. We are in the early stages of our chain store organization, but we are signing leases as fast as we find suitable new locations."

"Of course, there has been a temporary recession in business, but I'm sure it will be neither violent nor long lasting."

"Our plan calls for the opening of 100 new retail stores in 1930, and I am confident we shall realize the full extent of our program."

"Public utility magnates are said to have their fingers on the pulse of business, because they must plan years ahead of trade recessions and trade booms. Power, current, telephones must be available as business grows, but it might be perilous to make costly extensions only to find there has been a lull in business and they aren't needed."

"What about this, Mr. Insull?" Samuel Insull is emphatic.

"The stock market hasn't made the slightest difference in our policies," he says. "We are spending hundreds of millions of dollars next year, as in every year, for new construction."

Millions for New Plants.

"The Commonwealth Edison company will spend $35,000,000 for new construction."

"The Peoples Gas Light & Coke company is to spend $7,000,000 or $8,000,000."

"The Public Service company will put $20,000,000 into new construction and extensions."

"The Middle West Utilities company plans to spend $75,000,000 to $85,000,000 for new construction."

"Draw back? Why, we haven't even considered drawing back!"

"But, Mr. Insull, if there were danger of a business depression in the country, or a panic, you would be considering it, wouldn't you?"

"We most certainly would!" Mr. Insull explodes. "But there isn't a suggestion of any need for holding back. We're going ahead!"

Telephone Company's Plans.

The Illinois Bell Telephone company, of which W. Rufus Abbott is president, is to spend $43,000,000 in 1930 for extensions, new equipment, and betterments in the state of Illinois.

"There will be no change in our plans," says Mr. Abbott, reached over the telephone at Delavan lake. "We have by necessity kept in closest touch with business conditions, and there is no indication that the country is to suffer a severe or lasting slump."

"The expenditures our company is making in 1930 are based on our confidence that normal progress will be made in the trade of the state and country."

Times Are Good, Says Packer.

Banker Wetmore has said the people will keep on eating. Perhaps the packers have thoughts on the subject.

"We are in good times," says F. Edson White, president of Armour & Co. "So far as our company is concerned, with all its ramifications which lead us into many lines of business, we see no recession. We have not in any way changed our plans for this 1930 year."

"Forward bookings of merchandise are above normal, especially in the departments that reach the manufacturing businesses of the company, such ican business is a certain sign that there can be no lasting depression, in the opinion of R. A. Eckhart, president of the R. A. Eckhart Milling company.

"No line of business is overstocked, which was the cause of the last trade depression," Mr. Eckhart says. "With the demands of most of the people unchanged, retailers must continue to replenish their stocks, and wholesalers must continue to sell, and manufacturers continue to make."

"We have just completed a large elevator, which will be used with our other facilities to its full capacity. American industry is in splendid condition."

Yes, Mr. Huffington, the business outlook is good. It must be good, if you all say so.

PROPOSE SPANISH DUKE TO REPLACE PRIMO DE RIVERA

LONDON, Nov. 18.—(Monday.)—(AP)—A Gibraltar dispatch today reports that increased attacks on the dictatorship of Premier Primo de Rivera has induced King Alfonso to propose that the duke of Alba form a new government. The opposition to the premier was reported coming from those who condemn his financial policy as incompetent.

The duke of Alba, who is 51 and a close friend of the king, has never taken part in politics.

The duke is almost as English as Spanish, being a descendant of the royal family of Stuarts and of the Churchill family. His full title is duke of Alba and Berwick, the latter title having been bestowed on an ancestor by James II. of England.

EXPORTS OF U. S. IN YEAR TOTAL OVER 5 BILLION

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]
Washington, D. C., Nov. 17.—[Special.]—The outstanding development of American business during the last year has been an enormous increase in export trade, especially in exports of manufactured commodities, as viewed by the bureau of foreign and domestic commerce in its annual report, just forwarded to the secretary of commerce.
The report covers the fiscal year ending June 30. During the greater part of this period the bureau was headed by Dr. Julius Klein, now assistant secretary of commerce, who was succeeded by W. L. Cooper. The report was signed by Acting Director O. P. Hopkins.
"In the foreign field we have not only maintained but have most gratifyingly improved our export position," the report stated. "Last year, for the first time since 1913, shipments of American merchandise abroad exceeded five billion dollars. With a value of $5,284,000,000 they were one-half larger than the United Kingdom's exports of British goods and three-fourths greater than Germany's domestic exports."
Exports of Foodstuffs.
Although the exports of foodstuffs and other agricultural products are less than during the war period and the immediate post-war years, when European agriculture was demoralized, the report declares that "they are greater today than before the expansion of agriculture in countries such as Canada, Australia and Argentina."
The rapid growth of American exports of manufactured commodities is cited by the bureau as due in a large degree to the efficiency of American factory methods and to American sales efficiency.
"During the last fiscal year our exports of finished manufactures reached the huge sum of $2,509,000,000, being 22 per cent larger than in 1927-28 and 187 per cent larger than in 1913-14," the report continues. "The greatest gains during recent years have been in motor vehicles, machinery, chemicals, and other highly elaborated products."
Sounds Note of Warning.
Following its optimistic description of export gains the report sounds a note of warning to the effect that European industry is manifesting renewed ability. It continues:
"Great Britain has begun to rationalize, or recondition, its industries, to the end that by replacement of plant and by enlargement of the industrial unit through regrouping or consolidation the country may obtain the benefits of elimination of waste, standardization and simplification of practice and other economies which attend large scale production."
"With the reparation liabilities finally fixed and with the other advantages accruing under the Young plan, Germany is now free to release revived economic powers. There is danger, too, but by customs restrictions or the institution of more quota systems—as in the case of motion pictures—American exports will be curtailed in certain markets. American commerce must be prepared to face a new situation."
"From now on competition in foreign trade is going to be the keenest we have had since foreign trade came to mean much to us."

YOUTH IS SLAIN IN $4 HOLDUP; PAL ESCAPES

Marvin Toboda, 22 years old, 43 West 23d street, Chicago Heights, was shot dead last night in a battle with a railroad detective and a restaurant owner at Schneider, a village in the southwestern corner of Lake county, Indiana, after he and a companion had held up the restaurant. The companion escaped on foot, leaving his automobile in front of the restaurant. The two men entered the restaurant of Richard McLaughlin and took $4 from the cash register. Norman Cieski, a Monon railroad detective, was passing and saw the holdup. When the two bandits stepped out the door, Cieski started firing and McLaughlin opened fire from the inside. Both robbers returned their fire until Toboda fell with a bullet in his heart. He was later identified by papers in his pockets. He was a brother of William Toboda, a former Chicago Heights policeman.

A posse of deputy sheriffs and Schneider citizens started searching the southern end of Lake county for the slain man's companion.

COIN SHE EARNED HELPING MOTHER FATAL TO CHILD, 4

Parents Give Blood Four Times to No Avail.

Four year old Monica Hannapel, who nine days ago swallowed the nickel her mother had given her as a reward for her childish efforts to help with the housework, died early yesterday morning at Holy Cross hospital, 2700 West 69th street. Four blood transfusions, two from her mother and two from her father, were given her up to Saturday night, but failed to stem the progress of septicemia, which caused her death.

From the time her mother, Mrs. Joseph J. Hannapel, 6501 South California avenue, handed her the coin after Monica had helped with the breakfast dishes and held the dustpan after the rugs had been swept, the child had not been able to swallow any food.
Coin Blocks Throat.
She started for the corner drug store to buy an ice cream cone, but the nickel, which she put in her mouth to "see how it tasted," slipped down and lodged in a horizontal position, blocking the throat.
Monica didn't reveal what had happened, but that night she was unable to swallow any dinner. The following morning she was taken to Holy Cross hospital by Dr. Julius Adler, where an X-ray picture revealed the coin, eight inches down her throat. An operation performed by one of the staff physicians located the child's throat. Three days later Dr. Edward McGlinn, a throat specialist, succeeded in removing the coin with the help of a tiny periscope. The danger seemed to be over.

Fever Follows Operation.
Friday, however, Monica developed a high fever, and it became apparent that septicemia had developed. Another specialist was called in, and blood transfusions ordered. Twice on Friday Mrs. Hannapel gave blood for her daughter. On Saturday her father submitted to two transfusions, each of which was counted on to stop the spread of the poison.

Free Fight Ends Congress of Polish Peasant Party
WARSAW, Poland, Nov. 17.—(AP)—The congress of the Peasants party at Posen ended in a general free fight among delegates. The authorities had to step in to end the disorder. Vincent Wilos, party president, left the convention under police protection.

He pondered a while upon the proper procedure and decided that if the figure were human he would crack it with his shovel.
"I'll dash his brains out," is what Tony told the police he said to himself.
But before he could carry out his annihilatory intentions the figure spoke. "Give me your dough," it said. Too startled to wield his shovel, Tony handed over his $5 and the figure vanished as suddenly as it had appeared.

HOOVER TRADE BOOM PARLEY TO OPEN TOMORROW

Confers with Heads of Railroads First.

extensions, replacements and betterments of equipment, which have been held in abeyance for the last year or two because of the high cost of money. Now that interest rates are declining in the wake of the stock market delation, the President feels that the railroads should not hesitate to take their construction plans out of the pigeonholes and go ahead.

Call for Full Speed Ahead.

It is not unlikely that the result of the conference of railroad executives with the President will be action by the American Railway association at the Chicago meeting calling upon the roads for full speed ahead in the direction suggested by Mr. Hoover.

It is evident that the President, who discussed this matter yesterday with Daniel Willard, president of the Baltimore and Ohio, regards the cooperation of the common carriers as extremely important, for the reason that widespread orders by the railroads for construction material would operate to boom business all along the line.

The President will ask each group which confers with him to take such steps as are feasible within the group to dispel pessimism regarding the immediate future of business in the country and to encourage an orderly improvement in business and employment during the coming winter. There will also be considered the methods by which the activities of the various groups to stabilize business can be coordinated with similar activities by the government.

Work Through Organizations.

It is the purpose of Mr. Hoover to work entirely through the business and other occupational organizations. This is the method that he found got results when he was secretary of commerce. Every group in our economic life already is organized in an association. Commercial business, for example, is organized in national, state and local chambers of commerce. The manufacturers are organized nationally and locally. So are the railroads, labor, agriculture, and every other field of endeavor.

The President aims to have these organizations take the necessary steps on their own responsibility with a common purpose to free the business of the country from the effects of the recent stock market disturbance. Out of the conference he will have with each group he expects action by each organization in its own field to revive orderly production of goods and service and action by federal government agencies coordinating their activities with private activities.

The American merchant marine and the shipbuilding industry are to benefit from the new prosperity program of the administration. The inter-

COMMERCE LEADER SAYS BUSINESS STILL KNOCKS AT THE DOOR

Washington, D. C., Nov. 17.—(AP)—William Butterworth, president of the United States Chamber of Commerce, characterized the general business position in the United States as "strong" in an address over a national radio network tonight.

"All fields of business," said Mr. Butterworth, "can plan for the future with assurance of opportunities for success commensurate with ability and diligence."

"Business must understand that, as such, it has no sacred privileges which the public is bound to respect. It must realize that if it is to retain its legitimate liberty it must win and keep public confidence; and the only way to win public confidence is to deserve it. Business liberty is held on the tenure of good behavior."

parliamental subcommittee which has been considering the policy of granting foreign mail carrying contracts to American ship lines has recommended a more liberal course which, if adopted, will result in the construction of not less than 30 large passenger and cargo ships in American yards.

The postoffice department has held up the award of mail subventions to the United States lines and other shipping companies pending clarification of the intent of congress. The subcommittee now proposes that the grants be made without awaiting further action by congress.

Reserve Board Will Confer.

While the President is conferring with the business and industrial leaders, the federal reserve board's advisory council of leading bankers will hold its quarterly meeting beginning on Tuesday.

Because of the recent stock market crash and unusual conditions now prevailing, the meeting promises to have much more than ordinary significance. Usually the meetings of the advisory council are surrounded with the utmost secrecy, but occasionally its conclusions are made known. It is regarded as possible that its deliberations this time may be followed by an announcement of a reassuring character.

The question of a general rediscunt rate and other similar matters of policy bearing on control of the credit resources of the country will be up for discussion. The New York Federal Reserve bank has taken the lead in reducing its rediscunt rate to 4½ per cent, the rate of all other banks remaining at 5 per cent.

Little Agitation in Congress.

The stock market decline has been attended by surprisingly little agitation in congress. It is probable, however, that the banking and currency committee of the senate and possibly also of the house will give attention to problems relating to stock market speculation after the beginning of the regular session.

There seems to be a disposition to sidetrack a resolution of Senator G. P. Nye (Rep., N. D.), which is pending in the senate, for an investigation of stock market speculation by a special committee made up of ranking Republican and Democratic members of the judiciary and banking and currency and a fifth member appointed by the Vice President. Such a committee would be under the control of the radicals. If the investigation is made by the banking and currency committee it is likely to be along more conservative lines.

No Legislation Expected.

The federal reserve board last spring, in response to a senate resolution, stated that it had no recommendations for legislation designed to give greater control over speculation. There is no likelihood that the board will recommend any legislation along this line this winter. Senator Carter Glass (Dem., Va.) has an amendment pending to the tariff bill to tax speculative transactions on stock exchanges, but it is not likely to become law.

The federal reserve board's analysis of recent trends is contained in the November federal reserve bulletin, issued today.

In reviewing the industrial situation, the board says that its computtions show that operations of more than two-thirds of the basic industries have continued on a high level. Declines have occurred chiefly in a group including steel, automobiles and other related industries, composing in the aggregate less than one-third of the total industrial output.

CITY HUNTERS SPREAD HAVOC IN RURAL AREA

Ignore Property Rights, Shoot Live Stock.

Fields, farms and estates for miles around Chicago resounded with gunfire yesterday as an army of amateur hunters went forth with shotguns to shoot rabbits and pheasants, defying game laws and game wardens, disregarding "no trespassing" signs, and often killing chickens or wounding live stock instead of getting the game at which they fired.

The open season for pheasant shooting, which lasts only six days in Illinois, closed on Friday at sunset, but apparently that made no difference to the would-be hunters. If they came upon pheasants they shot at them—and in most instances observers said it made no difference whether the birds were cocks, which may be shot in season, or hens, which may not be shot at any time.

Hunters Grow in Number.
Inquiry yesterday developed that hunting by city dwellers, especially on Sundays and holidays, has been on the rapid increase during the last several years, and that the hunters have become a source of great annoyance to rural dwellers.

So much trouble have the hunters made that the farmers in Cook county, as well as in Du Page, Kane, Will, Lake, McHenry, and other nearby counties, have organized protective associations. The associations employ their own game wardens, who augment the regular state game wardens and the counties' deputy sheriffs, and who are out in numbers to help prosecute irresponsible who shoot in all directions on private farms and estates.

IT IS WELL TO REMEMBER THAT WITH ONE

Hundreds of the would-be hunters have been arrested and heavily fined this fall, but the prosecutions, it was said, do not appear to have diminished the trouble. In localities where pheasants have been unusually numerous this year the rattle of gunfire has been steady.

Sixty Fined at Wheaton.

Information from all the county seats around Chicago reflects the indignation felt by country dwellers over the situation. At Wheaton, in Du Page county, a correspondent said that some sixty men have been arrested and fined there this year, and that cows and horses and chickens have been killed or wounded.

"One hunter wounded a prize bull worth $500, and as a result the owner had to sell him for beef for $90," the informant said. "After that happened the farmers organized their protective association."

"The farmers simply couldn't put up with it. Most of the men who go hunting pay no attention to the farmers' rights. 'No trespassing' signs mean nothing to them. They either don't know what the game laws are or else they don't care, and when they get caught they are indignant. They are wanton and think they ought to be allowed to do just as they please."

This informant, a deputy sheriff, said that many of the hunters shoot song birds when they can't see anything else to shoot.

Woman Nabs Three Offenders.

Oscar Piper, a Chicagoan who did not leave an address, met a Tartar in Miss Nellie Thompson when he went hunting on her 600-acre farm four miles northwest of Cary, in McHenry county. Miss Thompson said she saw Piper and two companions shooting. They shot a pheasant on the state highway—a violation of the law—and then passed a "no trespassing" sign and entered her land.

"Miss Thompson reached up on the wall and took down a rifle," said Joseph Wandrack, chief deputy sheriff of McHenry county. "She walked out and leveled it at the three men, made them lay their guns on the ground, and then called the sheriff's office."

Piper left the three guns of his party to insure his appearance in court at Woodstock this morning when his case comes up for trial.

The Isaac Walton league has increased the forces of Sheriff Lawrence Doolittle and the state game wardens in Lake county with 50 special deputies, and at least 50 offenders have been arrested in that county this fall. In Kane county the protective association has been formed under the auspices of the farm bureau and the farmers in each township supplied funds for the employment of one extra deputy game warden. Frank Hageman of Wasco is the chief deputy in charge of this extra force, which has made numbers of arrests this season. "There are many instances of outrages by hunters," a Kane county informant said. "They shoot in all directions, kill animals belonging to the farmers, leave gates open behind them, and pull down fences so that animals stray off. They do not show the slightest sportsmanship. The farmers are fed up with them."

BOY HUNTER WOUNDED

Walter Crighton, 17 years old, of Algonquin, was accidentally shot and seriously wounded yesterday by a gun in the hands of Floyd Anderson, 17 years old, 5 Guth street, Dundee, while they were hunting with two companions in a field on Crighton's father's farm near Algonquin. Crighton had climbed over a stone wall and was several yards ahead of Anderson, whose gun was discharged when he knocked it against the wall as he clambered over. The shotgun charge struck Crighton in the back.

OPEN QUIZ TODAY INTO WHY CUNEO PERMIT STANDS

An aldermanic investigation of Building Commissioner Paschen's failure to obey council orders to revoke the permit for the Cuneo tower at the northeast corner of Michigan avenue and Randolph street will be begun this morning.

A special committee recently appointed to hold public hearings on building heights in Chicago will conduct a hearing on a resolution presented by Ald. Arthur Albert (43d) which asks for the investigation. Both Ald. Albert and Paschen are expected to be present.

BARE HOPE TO SOLVE BREEN BOMBING ON QUESTIONING FIVE MEN

Authorities last night based their hopes of solving the recent bombing of the home of First Assistant Corporation Counsel James W. Breen at 947 West 54th place upon the questioning of five suspects held incommunicado at the detective bureau. The five, taken in a raid late Saturday night upon the Club Dorado, 754 East 64th street, are Edward Sweeney of the Southmoor hotel; Walter Kerr, 8415 Drexel avenue; Bert Beschoff, a bartender of the club; Joseph Ball, 3188 Maryland avenue, and a man known only as "Mahoney," a motion picture operator.

Chief Investigator Patrick Roche, aided by Lieut. William Blaul of the state's attorney's office and Lieut. George Barker of the detective bureau bomb squad, made the raid. Roche said he had information that the bombing, which caused $5,000 damage, had been planned in the cafe.

Mr. Breen said he had given State's Attorney Swanson all the aid he could in solving the bombing, declaring he believed it due to vengeance on the part of disgruntled bootleggers who blamed him for "closing up the south side."

CONFESSES HE KILLED CICERO DRINK SELLER

Donald O'Shea, 4319 Winthrop avenue, confessed early this morning, according to the Fillmore street police, that he had shot and killed Joseph Novotny, 55 years old, 2102 Wesley avenue, Berwyn, early yesterday in a soft drink parlor at 1939 South 62d street, Cicero, where Novotny was employed as bartender. O'Shea told the police, they said, that the shooting followed a quarrel over the quality of the beer served in the place.

O'Shea and Thomas Kilmartin, 23 years old, 4326 Adams street, were taken into custody last night when an anonymous telephone call informed the police that the slayers of Novotny might be found in a drug store at Laramie and Chicago avenues. Detectives Daniel Madigan and Martin Boyle went to the place and found the two men there. Kilmartin denied that he had anything to do with the shooting, but O'Shea, according to Madigan, said that Josef Shradie, proprietor of the saloon, had been buying his beer of "Klondike" O'Donnell until recently, when he changed the source of his supply. O'Shea and Kilmartin, who were drinking in the place, criticized the new beer and the fatal quarrel followed. Both men, the detectives said, are known as beer "hustlers" for J'Donnell.

WAY MAPPED OUT TO SAVE CITY IN FINANCE CRISIS

Loose Borrowing Called
One Cause of Chaos.

Elimination of the financial difficulties of local governments by the adoption of sound financial practices to keep expenditures within revenues was recommended in a survey of the joint commission on real estate values, released yesterday by Chairman George O. Fairweather. The survey abolishes the really renaissance of blame for the present financial crisis and places responsibility on executive officers.

Throughout the report stress is placed on the "unsound theory of financing by tax anticipation warrants. It is stated that the local governments borrow in excess of the legal limit of 75 per cent of the tax levy because of faulty estimates of anticipated revenue. Such optimistic practice will lead spending bodies, now in acute condition, deeper into the "red," the survey points out.

Need Help of State.

It is predicted that several local governments, under the present financial system, will need assistance before the next session of the legislature. In this event the survey demands that plans be worked out to put the tax spenders on a sound business basis. The four essentials to sound finance are listed as:

1. A sound assessment service, which is basic to any plan for permanent financial relief.
2. A definite temporary borrowing power which fixes the limit for mortgaging future income.
3. A definite budget law which controls expenditures in relation to revenue.
4. A funding of existing debts which frankly and economically faces the sad facts of present deficits as they are, and prepares the way, not for repetition, but for orderly and controlled public finance programs.

Tells of Wrong Estimate.

The report makes a study of the finances of the city, county, and school corporate funds. It states that the city had expected the 1928 realty tax valuation to be approximately $4,250,000,000, with an increase of $100,000,000 in the 1929 assessment. Instead, however, the 1928 valuation will approximate only $3,800,000,000.

The city had estimated receipts of approximately $44,000,000 for 1928 and $43,000,000 for 1929 levies. The drop in the latter is due to a decrease in the tax rate. In contrast to this the report estimates probable revenue from the 1928 levy at $38,500,000 and the 1929 at $36,500,000.

On Dec. 31, 1928, the outstanding city corporate fund obligations were $48,825,261.36. The expenditures for 1929 will reach $40,000,000. The only cash revenue is from miscellaneous funds estimated at $16,000,000. It is evident, the survey says, that the total outstanding obligations will be approximately $99,825,000 on Dec. 31, 1929.

Predicts Deficit in 1930.

The outlook for 1930 is, therefore, very dark, even though retrenchment keeps 1930 expenditures to $54,500,000. The obligations stand formidably against the approximate $17,000,000 of the combined 1928 and 1929 revenues. Taking into account all other sources of revenue the report predicts that the year 1930 will close with obligations of from $15,000,000 to $18,000,000 in excess of the probable 1931 tax collections, even with the retrenchment.

The finances of the county and school board are given a similarly dismal outlook.

In offering remedy the report reads:

"It is the practice in the business world to administer finances on some definite fiscal basis. In the state and county the financial affairs of each year are hopelessly scrambled with those of both preceding and following fiscal years. Appropriations are based upon wishes rather than facts and have no relation to actual financial condition."

Suggests Separate Fiscal Years.

Outside of Illinois the prevailing practice is said to be to finance local governments each year with the proceeds of taxes collected during the fiscal year. To achieve this end in Illinois the survey suggests a clean separation of fiscal years. This can be accomplished only through legislation, it is pointed out.

Appropriations should be confined to responsibly estimated cash receipts from revenue, to incurring obligations against appropriations, and to cash receipts. This plan is confronted by three obstacles listed in the report as unfunded debts, inconsistent laws governing financial administrations, and uncertain assessment administration.

The report urges the funding of all debts of corporate funds outstanding on Dec. 1, 1929, in excess of the tax collections from the 1928 revenue as the logical basis for disposing of the floating debts. This would leave the proceeds of the 1929 levy plus miscellaneous revenue available to finance the expenses of operating these funds. Revision of legislation should provide that the annual tax levies be filed before the second Tuesday in August of each year preceding the year in which collections are made, rather than the present system of preparation early in the fiscal year. The finance officer should make an estimate of incoming revenue binding on the administrative officers. This law should also provide that contracts for expenditures be voided unless they are made pursuant to the appropriations for the purpose and unless it is certain that cash will be in the treasury when the obligations fall due.

The revision legislation should be drawn, according to the plan, so as to limit borrowing laws. It is proposed that the county be given the power to borrow on or after the first Monday in December in anticipation of taxes collectable in April, and the city on or after Jan. 1, dates being fixed by budget dates of the bodies. No one could misconstrue or stretch such a definite basis for temporary borrowing, the survey declares.

Collect Taxes on Time.

Finally, according to the report, the sound financial plan requires the collection of taxes in the specified time limits, now abused by the tax collecting agencies. This can be remedied only through a complete reorganization and centralization of assessing machinery.

WOMAN DIES IN JAIL.

Mrs. Myrtle Ellis, 45 years old, died yesterday at the county jail where she was awaiting arraignment on a charge of violating the federal narcotic laws. Jail authorities said that her death apparently was caused by heart disease.

HOOVER LEARNS NAVAL OFFICERS WANT DELEGATE

Parley Personnel Expected to Stand, However.

(Chicago Tribune Press Service.)
Washington, D. C., Nov. 17.—(Special.)—Rumblings of the dissatisfaction expressed privately by many of the high ranking admirals of the navy over the minor part assigned to them in the naval reduction negotiations preliminary to the holding of the five power conference in London have come to Hoover's attention.

There were no indications today, however, that the President would change his program and assign a naval officer as a full delegate to the London naval conference as has been done by Japan. It is considered highly probable, however, that steps will be taken to assure members of the navy general board and other officers connected with the technical end of the naval reduction situation that due weight will be given to navy opinions before important decisions are made.

Stimson Expected to Act.
Secretary of State Henry L. Stimson is expected to act tomorrow to clarify the status of Rear Admiral Hilary P. Jones, one of the United States delegates at the three power naval reduction conference at Geneva in 1927 and leading American naval expert on naval reduction matters. The rear admiral was named as second member of the American naval delegation, but has not yet accepted the appointment.

Rear Admiral Jones, the White House has learned, is reluctant to serve because of the feeling that too little weight will be accorded his views when the time comes to decide just what naval reductions this country will make. Like several other admirals, Mr. Jones is represented as opposed to the appointment of Admiral William V. Pratt, commander in chief of the United States fleet, as the senior naval delegate. The opposition to Admiral Pratt, the administration learns, is due to the fact that he was one of the naval advisers at the Washington conference, where the United States sacrificed battleship supremacy.

Jones Feels Resentment.
It was learned today that Rear Admiral Jones is also somewhat resentful of the treatment accorded him and members of the general board by Secretary Stimson and Undersecretary of State Joseph P. Cotton. The rear admiral feels, it was said, that he, as a naval technical expert, has not always been taken into the confidence of state department officials when important naval developments arose.

CROWN BOY CHIEF OF AFRICAN TRIBE WITH OLD RITES

12,000 Natives Gather to Drum's Call.

BY FRANK BURTON.

(Chicago Tribune Press Service.)
CAPE TOWN, South Africa, Nov. 17.—At Pietermaritzburg, the most progressive native town in Bechuanaland, Molefi, a youth of ten years, has just been installed as ruler of one of the most civilized tribes in the Bechuanaland protectorate—the Bakghatla tribe.

Molefi succeeds the regent, Isang, who was appointed to rule the tribe until his charge reached the age of ten. Isang has been one of the most notable native rulers in Africa. He has spent thousands on the advancement of his subjects. Many years ago he accepted Christianity as the state religion. Education has been his principal concern. He built a school on the summit of the hill overlooking the town so that, as he said, "his people could see it always and never forget it."

Rifles Replace Spears.
So civilized has the Bakghatla tribe become that, in normal times, they no longer stain or polish their bodies. Their "army" is civilized. Asaagel and shield have been replaced by modern rifles.

But during the enthronement ceremonies, which lasted a day and a night, the Bakghatla seemed to have forgotten civilization. Their chief was no longer a constitutional and modern ruler but a being who stood between them and the destructive forces of nature.

The barbaric tribal ceremonies were carried out in detail. Throughout the hot afternoon of the previous day ceaseless drumming called the tribe together from all parts of the district. Eventually 12,000 natives were assembled.

It had been prophesied among the tribe that the long winter drought would break during Molefi's enthronement ceremonies. Strangely enough this was the case. A violent thunderstorm swept the district. The tribe saw this as a good omen for the future of the new ruler. The fact that a native but was struck by lightning and a native woman and four children burned to death, cast only a temporary gloom.

At dawn the next day the five "regiments" of the tribe marched from different directions to an historic tree where the actual investiture of the chief began. Here in 1886, Sebele, in command of a Bakghatla force was put to flight—the last time the Bakghatla were in battle. The impis on the march sang the mournful post-battle song: "We have scattered our enemies, but many of us are slain."

Chief Wears Modern Clothes.
When all were assembled in a wide circle round the tree Regent Isang led the new chief, Molefi, into the center of the ring. He is a tall, attractive looking native, and was dressed in a purple double breasted suit and wore a large full brimmed Stetson. Just then two headmen appeared. They pulled the Stetson from his head, replacing it with the headpiece of royal leopard skin. His enthronement, so far as the tribe was concerned, was complete. From the far off hills hundreds of young Bakghatla girls whistled in a peculiar birdlike, but strangely melodious fashion.

That night 12,000 Bakghatla and 800 priests made merry over thousands of gallons of Kafir beer and hundreds of roast oxen. The sound of them singing, the clank of the toms, and the shrieks of dancers were flung far over the veld, absorbing all other sounds.

FISHER IS MADE U. S. PROSECUTOR IN STILL CASES

Creating a new branch of prohibition investigation in his office, United States Attorney Johnson has assigned his assistant, Edward A. Fisher, to the task of preparing cases involving large stills. Fisher will also handle equity cases wherein the disposal of property on which stills are found is concerned.

In that connection Mr. Fisher has announced that he will give protection to those persons who voluntarily inform him that their premises are being used by bootleggers.

"Some persons are innocent of the use to which their property is to be put when they rent it to alcohol cooks," Mr. Fisher said. "The government will welcome information from property owners and will not reveal their identity."

Give Your Face a Taste of the Mint Julep Shave

Let your poor, shaved-to-death face have one taste of the mint julep shave and it will never again dread the razor! A mint julep shave is easily made. Simply take a little BRISK shaving cream and add to it a little warm or cold water.

BRISK makes a mint julep shave because of the things it does on your face and on your spirits. First of all, BRISK makes plenty of lather and that's the first essential to a good shave. BRISK absorbs two to three times the amount of water that old fashioned shaving cream does. Hence it forms two to three times the amount of lather—and a lather that stays moist on your face until you finish your shave!

Lubricates the Shave.
The rich, moistureful lather quickly "cushions" the beard oil and soaks the hair soft for easy, clean cutting. Moreover, it lubricates the cutting stroke of the razor. You know how a bit of soap on a saw eases its passage through a log—well, that's how BRISK smooths the cutting stroke of the razor. The razor does not "pull" or bump along over your face, but glides sweetly over the skin, cutting down the hair closely and cleanly and almost without effort. No need to go over and over the same spot and "butcher" your face to get a close shave.

A Skin Conditioner as well as a Shave.
Whereas the average shave is hard on your face, a BRISK shave is a boon. Your face feels and looks all the better for a BRISK shave. For BRISK carries its own balm and is a skin conditioner as well as a shave. It leaves your face soft, smooth and supple—fit to go out and meet the world. Try just one BRISK shave.

BRISK is new, even unto the package. It's a flat, oval tin box made for men only. And it holds an amazing lot of shave because you have to use so little compared to other shaving creams. Get BRISK now at any good drug store or toilet goods counter—fifty cents.

BRISK has four brothers: ZEST, a refreshing after-shave lotion; TRIM, a hair dressing in cleanly stick form; SMOOTH, a powder that kills shine without showing powder; STIP, a new type "stipic" that closes cuts pronto!

Work up lather on your face. Start in shaving. Boy! How the whiskers go down before your razor when BRISK permeates the way.

RUBIO CAPTURES PRESIDENCY OF MEXICO; 19 DIE

Wins Over Vasconcelos by Huge Majority.

BULLETIN.

MEXICO CITY, Nov. 17.—(P)—As a result of violence in today's election, a carefully checked casualty list tonight showed 19 dead.

BY JOHN CORNYN.

(Chicago Tribune Press Service.)

MEXICO CITY, Nov. 17.—Reports from all sections of the country show that Pascual Ortiz Rubio of the National Revolutionary party was elected president of Mexico for a term of four years by an overwhelming majority in what is believed to be the greatest presidential vote ever cast in the republic.

José Vasconcelos, nominated by the Anti-Revolutionist party, tonight admitted defeat. More than 1,000,000 votes out of about 2,000,000 have so far been reported cast for Rubio.

Riots at the polls characterized the day in the capital. In an attempt to capture Vasconcelos' headquarters here, five are reported to have been killed and 50 wounded. Twelve are reported to have been slain throughout Mexico.

Stop Riots from Voting.

The chief political game in today's elections was for one party to get control of the polling booths and prevent the other from voting. The Rubio party claimed to have possession of a large majority of city polling places and, where this condition existed, the Vasconcelos party proceeded to cast its votes in unofficial places. In several towns in the state of Guerrero, reported to favor Vasconcelos, Rubio voters were forced to cast their votes in an unofficial booth.

In the capital arms were distributed to political clubs, and pulque, the national drink, was issued to Rubio's "ward heelers" who, since last night, had been in possession of the voting booths. They did not permit a single Anti-Revolutionist to vote. With the exception of a few members, no Vasconcelos followers were allowed to be placed on the voting lists. Ten thousand Vasconcelos voters at the palace of justice were barred from casting their ballots.

More than 12,000 troops, infantry and cavalry, paraded the city keeping order. Reports that an attempt

15 PERSONS RESCUED AFTER BARGE FERRY ON RIVER CAPSIZES

Pensacola, Fla., Nov. 17.—(P)—Fifteen persons, including three children and two women were rescued tonight after the barge ferry operating on the Sage river between here and Mobile, Ala., capsized in mid-stream in about 15 feet of water. Four automobiles sank.

D. Gillis, owner of the ferry, said the automobiles unbalanced the barge when they were jerked to one side by the force of the current.

The women and children and three men reached shore on a small power boat which accompanied the ferry. Four men were rescued by W. H. Wells, a fisherman, and three others swam to shore.

The passengers remained here tonight awaiting attempts tomorrow to salvage their automobiles and baggage.

would be made to capture the Rubio headquarters attracted several hundred members of the National Revolutionary party, fully armed, who massed to defend the "fort." But no trouble materialized.

President Gil Votes.

At 12:30 p. m. President Emilio Portes Gil, accompanied by Dr. Manuel Puig y Casarum, business head of the federal district, Genaro Estrada, minister of foreign relations, and several other prominent members of the National Revolutionary party, polled their votes for Rubio at the central booth. The president was loudly cheered.

Shortly after 2 p. m. when the polls were closed President Gil began to receive returns from all parts of the republic. He expressed pleasure, as they showed the government candidate winning in every state in the Mexican union.

Telegrams from most states show that Rubioistas were in possession of a large majority of the polls.

Rubio Wins 21 out of 23 States.

It was claimed at 8 p. m. that 21 states out of 23 had voted for Rubio, though the returns were not fully tabulated. It will probably take a day or two to receive the exact results of the voting and full information on what happened at the polls throughout the republic.

It is reported that four were killed in the city of Vera Cruz, including a Rubio follower, who was lynched. In Cordoba, two were slain. One was killed in a fight for control of a voting booth.

Guard Ambassador Morrow's Home.

In Mexico City troops guarded the American embassy, where Ambassador Dwight W. Morrow remained. His wife and daughter, Elizabeth Morrow, had gone to their summer home in Cuernavaca.

President Elect Rubio will be inaugurated Feb. 5. He is an engineer and former ambassador to Brazil. His victory means the continuance of the present government policies in their entirety. Mexico's international policy, too, will be unchanged.

RESUME EFFORTS TODAY TO SETTLE CLEANERS' FIGHT

Further efforts will be made today to settle the differences between the Master Cleaners and Dyers' association and their employees following a deadlock which persisted through a daily series of conferences last week. Meanwhile, it has been announced, some of the association members have determined to open their shops today on a nonunion basis.

Some of the larger establishments, including those of the Birck interests on the south side, refused to follow the lead of others which plan to operate on a nonunion basis. The group which is opposing the open shop plan will continue negotiations with the union in the office of the Chicago Federation of Labor.

DENIES FIRING RAIL EMPLOYE FOR JURY WORK

Dorr G. Ferrin, 6941 Dorchester avenue, was not discharged from his position as a switchman for the Baltimore and Ohio railroad because he served on a county jury but because he left his job without permission. It was declared yesterday by George E. Gorman, attorney for R. R. Huggins, yardmaster for the road.

Judge Marcus A. Kavanagh in the Criminal court on Saturday gave Huggins a 60 days' jail sentence and a $25 fine for discharging Ferrin ostensibly because Ferrin performed jury service. Attorney Gorman has entered an appeal against the Kavanagh ruling.

According to Mr. Gorman, Huggins acted only after investigating the Ferrin case and receiving orders to discharge Ferrin from J. E. Fahy, superintendent of the Chicago division of the Baltimore and Ohio, whose office is in Garrett, Ind. Mr. Fahy could not be reached by telephone yesterday.

"The road customarily pays its men the proportion of wages they would lose by jury service, and Ferrin would have been no exception to this rule only he tried to hold down a switching job at night while being a juror by day," said Mr. Gorman.

Ferrin declared that it has been the custom for switchmen to work a full time night job while acting as a juror in daytime.

ADVERTISE IN THE CHICAGO TRIBUNE

HONGKONG CHILD SLAVERY TRAFFIC SHOCKS BRITAIN

Lady Simon Reveals Torture of Young Chinese.

BY JOHN STEELE.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.] LONDON, Nov. 17.—England was horrified today by the revelations made by Lady Simon, wife of Sir John Simon, who headed the recent committee to investigate Indian conditions regarding child slavery in Hongkong, probably the only part of the British empire where slavery still exists.

The child slaves are known as Maltis, a Chinese phrase meaning little sister. There are 2,000,000 unfortunate children in China who were sold by their parents as soon as they were able to work and used for the hardest sorts of toil, and tortured as a punishment for any small faults.

Fifty Years of Effort Fail. British attention was directed toward the cessation of this traffic 50 years ago when Sir John Smale, chief justice of Hongkong, denounced it and Lord Kimberley ordered an inquiry but slavery still continues. Winston Churchill, former chancellor of the exchequer, tried to abolish the system in 1922 unsuccessfully. An ordinance passed the following year aimed at the abolition of slavery also failed.

Although there is an act on the books against Maltis, the authorities seem helpless. A case is quoted of a woman who sold her daughter, aged 13, for $20 with the option of buying her back by adding to the price $1.50 a month for maintenance. Then she was sold for $100, making it necessary for the mother to pay $150 to have her daughter back. The girl tried to escape from her new master, who brought legal action for the recovery of his property and the girl was returned to him. This is not an isolated case. It happened in 1928.

Amputation Follows Torture. Lady Simon tells horrible stories of children being tortured by flogging, suspensions, pouring boiling water over their heads, amputation of their fingers, dislocations, and burning with hot irons. One child was suspended all night from the ceiling by a rope tying her wrists and ankles together. All her limbs had to be amputated later.

Chinese contractors, instead of buying children outright, sometimes pay the parents $3 monthly, rehiring the children's services to sweat shops for $8. Domestic slavery is common because girls are cheap. They are often bought at the age of 4 or 5 years, and after 10 or 15 years of service are sold to houses of ill fame or married to men willing to pay for wives.

SLUGGED BY BOMBERS; DIES. John Kopas, 51 years old, employed at an Illinois Central railroad road, died at the Illinois Central hospital yesterday of injuries sustained when he was slugged and robbed on Nov. 8.

SLAVE CENTER

Hongkong, probably the only part of the British empire where slavery still exists, is an island port and naval base off the southern coast of China. The population is largely Chinese.

SUSPECT YANKEE BOOTLEGGERS BID FOR FRENCH WINE

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.] PARIS, Nov. 17.—Several mysterious bidders, who are believed to have been agents for international bootleggers purchasing for the purpose of smuggling to America, were present at the wine auctions at Beaulieu, the hearty Burgundy wine district today.

A special jury of wine experts sampled products of the various chateaux and other growers, pronouncing the wine of 1928 as the best since 1920, and extremely profitable. They said that the extreme richness of the sugar content and the absence of all grape maladies permitted the classification of this year's wine among the finest known. "The fine white wines of Chablis are very superior," they added, "and those of Macon are also excellent. The Beaujolais and Tonne wines are of finest quality. There were abundant crops at Nuits St. Georges, but Chablis is slightly under its normal yield."

Several record prices were paid. Casks of Fleurie brought $28 for 218 litres (237.5 quarts), with Pouilly and Fuisse at $48, and choice Beaune at $160.

Detective Kills His Wife

in Home, Ends Own Life

Toledo, O., Nov. 17.—(AP)—John P. Henahan, 40, veteran city detective, and his wife, Helen, 38, are dead, the result of what police say was a murder and suicide. The body of Henahan with two bullets through the heart was found today lying on a down-stairs davenport, his pistol nearby. The body of Mrs. Henahan was found upstairs with a bullet wound in the heart. The double killing is believed to have been the culmination of a series of domestic quarrels. Police believe the tragedy was enacted either late Friday or early yesterday.

The plane was "up" mangled.

U. S. EDUCATORS TO SPEND YEAR MAKING SURVEY

Purpose to Define Policy on Relations.

Washington, D. C., Nov. 17.—(AP)—The first comprehensive attempt in history to define a policy to govern relations between the federal government and education, which was discussed but not agreed upon by the constitutional convention of 1787, will be inaugurated this week with President Hoover's sanction.

Charles R. Mann, chairman of the national advisory committee on education, appointed last spring by Secretary Wilbur, announced the plans today after receiving pledges of cooperation from the government and interested private organizations. The study will occupy a year.

Capital to Be Center.

An announcement concerning funds and a director for the project will be made tomorrow or Tuesday. Extensive research and conferences touching every pertinent phase will be undertaken from offices to be set up in Washington.

At the direction of President Hoover all cabinet members are appointing representative dealing with education in their departments to confer with the advisory committee.

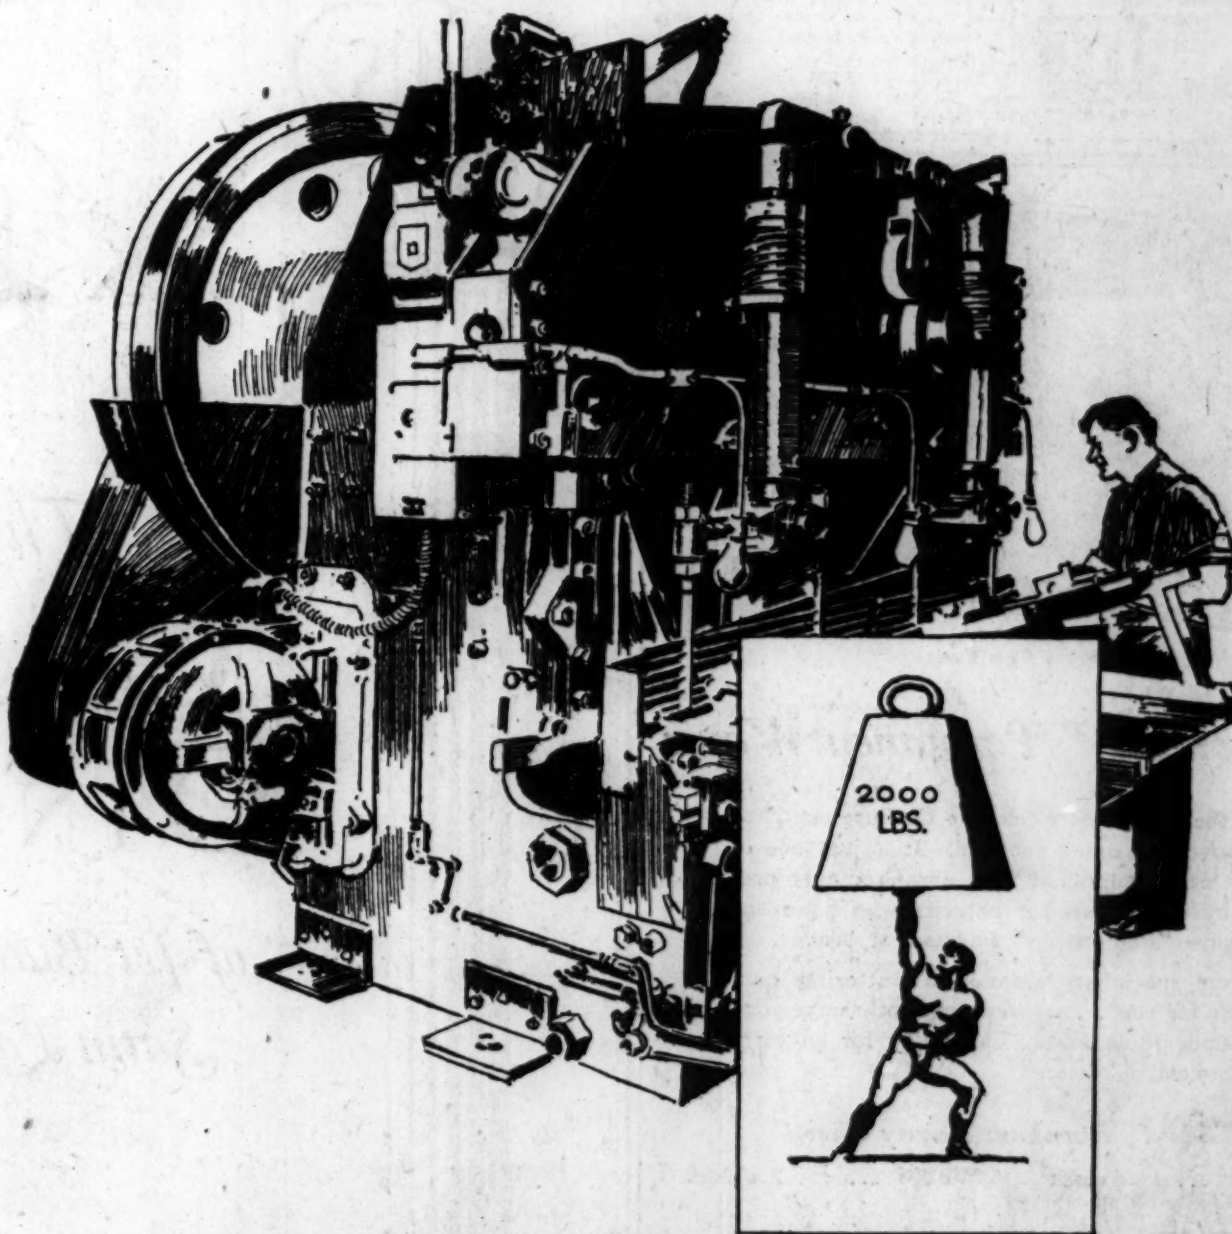

Endorsed By Colleges.

The National Association of State Universities, convening in Chicago last week, appointed a committee to cooperate, as follows: President, F. L. McVey, University of Kentucky; President W. A. Jessup, University of Iowa, and President David Kinley, University of Illinois.

POWER!

WITH a simple movement of his hand this Western Electric employee at Hawthorne applies the pressure of one ton!

Many operations in the manufacture of telephone equipment for the nation require the watchful, steady control of just such powerful machinery. Many others call for the sure accuracy of testers using instruments that gauge to the ten-thousandth part of an inch. Whatever the requirements, throughout half a century they have been successfully met by your fellow Chicagoans manning the machines.

The work that they are doing is typical of the constructive power of Chicago — industrial leadership deserving the faith of the entire nation!

THOUSAND SLAIN IN DRY REGIME, IT IS ESTIMATED

Some Records Untrue, Brochure Reports.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]
Washington, D. C., Nov. 17.—[Special.]—More than 1,000 lives have been sacrificed in ten years' effort to make Volsteadism effective, it was estimated today by the Association Against the Prohibition Amendment in a brochure reporting its study of the results of "reforming America with a shotgun." The actual total of the tremendous toll taken by "hair trigger" enforcers of federal and state dry laws will probably never be known because reliable records of killings by state enforcers, county sheriffs and agents, village marshals and constables, and in many cases unauthorized volunteer snipers, have never been kept, according to the association's investigators. The fact that the "flimsy, unconvincing, biased and sometimes actually untrue" records of the federal prohibition bureau disclose the loss of at least 260 lives—civilian and officers—justifies, the association contends, the assertion that if the truth could be known the number of Volstead fatalities would exceed 1,000. The association's experts report that they arrived independently at the conclusion after exhaustive study that "the federal records on the whole cannot be trusted for fairness and candor." The brochure recalls the recently published charge by Senator M. E. Tydings [Dem., Md.] that reports of no less than 51 killings have been suppressed by either the prohibition bureau or other federal agencies engaged in some phase of Volstead enforcement. The 51 deaths which Senator Tydings charged were "the direct result of attempts to enforce the prohibition law" are distributed as follows: Prohibition bureau, 18; coast guard, 7; revenue service, 15; Indian service, 2; customs, 6; immigration bureau, 1; and United States marshals, 1. "A policy of prohibition-at-any-cost has gone farther," the brochure continued, "than the omission or suppression of information which might bring discredit on the service or increase public resentment against Volsteadism as a creed. Tried in Federal Courts. "As we shall show, the record of killings by federal agents includes a sheet of homicides for which the shooters have not been prosecuted along ordinary lines. Even where there have been state enforcement acts, the state's legal machinery for bringing killers to justice has been stopped by federal intervention. Local officials have been thrust aside, the defendants have been taken from them under writs of habeas corpus, and the trials have been held in federal courts. "Generally, United States attorneys and sometimes special federal attorneys from Washington have appeared as counsel for accused agents. The agents have been acquitted as a rule. "We believe," the brochure continues, "that this practice, while entirely within the law, has not infrequently blocked the punishment of reckless shooters. In effect, it has impeded the work of local prosecutors by setting up cases in which the state has had to cope not only with counsel for the defense but with the legal machinery of the government. Federal attorneys have taken the agent under their wing, as a client of the government, and their efforts to protect federal dry officers from real or fancied local prejudice have obstructed proper proceedings to determine the defendant's guilt or innocence. "A score or more of typical cases drawn from prohibition bureau records are cited to emphasize the heavy loss of life as a result of careless and promiscuous use of firearms by untrained enforcers whose fatal mistakes are attributed in the records to "shot at tire," "stumbled," "stray bullet," or "thought he had a weapon. Many Shot in Flight. "It is perhaps interesting to note," says the brochure, "how often agents' shots have missed the automobile wheels and hit a man, and on the other hand, how often agents' wild shots, accidentally discharged, have not missed a man. We are obliged to assume that the law of chance in both cases works rather uniformly against the unfortunate person who happens to be in front of the gun. "Dozens of persons have been shot in flight, others killed in cold blood when they resisted searches of their homes or property by raiders not authorized by search warrants, and many have been shot when they speeded past agents they believed to be highwaymen, according to the brochure. A number of "particularly shocking tragedies," the killing of Mrs. Lillian De King at Aurora, Ill., in March, 1928; of Jacob Hanson, prominent citizen of Niagara Falls, N. Y., in May, 1928, and of James Lee and his 11 year old daughter near Detroit, Mich., are detailed to show how innocent persons have been victims of reckless dry agents. The association does not suggest any remedy of its own, but it does quote the recently expressed opinion of Jane Addams, internationally known Chicago social service worker, as follows: "What the prohibition situation needs, first of all, is disarmament. If this necessitates federal control of the sale of firearms, so much the better; but whatever is necessary for the final results, the federal agents should promptly be taught some other methods than those of gunmen. It is their business to bring lawbreakers into court and not to punish them on the spot."

ANN ARBOR FOLK TO GIVE BANQUET FOR DR. RUTHVEN

Ann Arbor, Mich., Nov. 17.—[Special.]—Dr. Alexander G. Ruthven, the quiet and unassuming man who recently became president of the University of Michigan, will be feted tomorrow night at a banquet by more than 100 Ann Arbor citizens who refuse to be denied honoring Dr. Ruthven merely because he sidestepped a formal inauguration. Along with Dr. and Mrs. Ruthven the city will honor the regents and deans of the university and their wives. President Emeritus Harry B. Hutchins, who retired from office in favor of Dr. Burton in 1920, after having been president of the university since 1909, is expected to speak. Mortimer E. Cooley, dean emeritus of the engineering college and former Democratic candidate for governor, has been in the south, but will return for the banquet. Regent Junius E. Beal will act as toastmaster. Attorneys George J. Burke and Frank J. Devine will give short addresses. The program will be broadcast.

The Chicago Tribune as evidence of its determination to carry on is rushing the completion of the plans for its new 22-story building, shown in the above sketch. This new structure, complementary when finished the soaring beauty of Tribune Tower, will be erected just north of it. Plans for the new Tribune plant to be built just east of the Tower likewise are being rapidly pushed forward.

ON the TRIBUNE!

HYSTERIA threatens business judgment. Marginal losses have obscured basic values. A tremendous stock speculation had turned American eyes from its real job. A slump has shocked the public. Actual damage is slight. Few have impaired capital. Paper profits which had not been liquidated had little effect on buying power. Paper losses have given no real setback to trade and commerce. What existed on paper had no solid significance.

It is regrettable that people have lost in stock speculation. But it is to be remembered that those who have lost are but a small part of the country's population. There has been no engulfing of people, no destruction of industry, 120,000,000 people still live, hunger, strive. Certificates today represent just as many plants, machinery, automobiles, furnaces, rails and locomotives as ever.

The country is sound

CARRY ON! The country is sound. Quitters never won through. Those who slack now will make no gain by doing so. The supine will be the losers. America is but part way in its march of progress. The moral failure of a few will not arrest the country's growth. If there were apparent in American business any fundamental reasons for slacking, they should be a challenge to men of courage, ability and decisive action. But there is none. The collapse in the stock market has brought into stronger relief the real, solid worth of American business. The clearing of a miasma of warped thinking shows the structure of American business to be strong and unimpaired.

Business is good

Carry on! Ambition is still alive in the human heart. Goods are still keenly desired. Employment throughout the present year has been high and is today well above a year ago. Strikes have been conspicuously absent. There has been no inflation in commodity prices. No deflation is to be expected. Forward commitments may be placed confidently. There is no advantage to be had in waiting for prices to come down. Retail inventories generally are light. Hand-to-mouth buying has fortified the retailer. No large stocks clog the channels of trade. Corporations have huge funds out of which to weather any storm. Their capital is not injured. Manufacturing does not languish for lack of finance. The building outlook is most auspicious. Interest rates are favorable and the recent cut by the Federal Reserve Board is additional assurance of easy money.

Chicago Tribune drives ahead

Business is good! Probe it. Inventory it. Inspection of the basic factors that support American prosperity reassure sober appraisal. And as warrant of its confidence in the character of the American people, as evidence of its convictions that conditions are sound, the Chicago Tribune is continuing on the most ambitious program it has ever undertaken. Today work begins on the installation of extra press equipment costing $500,000. Plans for new Tribune buildings, to be erected beside the Tribune Tower and calling for an expenditure of $12,000,000, are being rushed. Tribune news gathering services are being expanded and improved. We will keep our readers and get more. Improvement in newspaper quality will continue unabated. All along the line of operation the Chicago Tribune drives ahead without hesitancy.

A challenge to fighters

In 1921 we invited our customers to join us in our drive against business retrenchment. Courage and action won through. Again we invite American business to drive on. Again we urge leaders of business to rally its power.

WE CARRY ON.

We deplore the losses of the many individuals who bought stocks on margins and were caught in the market debacle of prices. We all make errors of judgment and life exacts its inexorable penalties for them. That is a law no congress can repeal. The misfortune, in some cases tragic disasters, especially for people of small means, deserves and receives the sympathy of all right minded people.

But if these men and women have lost, no others have lost anything. The stocks they hold represent precisely what they represented when they were represented in the stock market at twice their present quotations. They represent the same great organizations of production, they represent as many rails and the capacity to make and sell rails. They represent as many automobiles, indispensable adjuncts to modern life, and the same capacity to turn them out and distribute them. They represent the same fabrics and processes and pretty much the same demand for their service.

They represent essentially the same great natural resources of this rich continent and the courage, intelligence and industry of one hundred and thirty million Americans.

This is the solid rock upon which the main structure of American prosperity is founded and American securities are shares in that structure.

There may be a temporary recession in business. It will be primarily psychological, for the basic elements of American prosperity remain unshaken.

If this recession comes, the courageous and energetic will not suffer. The supine and fearful will be the losers.

This Tribune will keep its readers and get more. We propose to put in new presses. We shall erect a new building. We shall improve and increase by every available means our news service and the many features which inform and entertain our readers. We propose to advance with full confidence in the continued prosperity and progress of our country, our city and the splendid region of which it is the dynamic center.

This policy we know will redound to our own advantage as well as that of our readers and the community.

We recommend it to others.

EUROPEAN REALITIES AND AMERICAN SENTIMENTALITIES.

Mrs. Sinclair Lewis, interviewed after considerable travel on the European continent, offers a summary of the situation which Americans would do well to ponder. Mrs. Lewis borrows, or possesses in her own right it is probably fairer to say, the realism distinguishing the work of her celebrated husband, and her observations are those of a trained journalist. She has been impressed by the fate of minorities in Europe, which she finds there, as indeed they conspicuously are, in chains. What we would emphasize also, is her observation that the "liberated peoples," who have not merely exchanged one oppressor for another, have become oppressors where formerly they were oppressed. Mrs. Lewis' observation is supported by Mrs. Guillaume, vice president of the World League of Women for Hungary, an Englishwoman, wife of a Hungarian, who says that of 100,000,000 people in Europe 30,000,000 are minorities whose dissatisfaction, unless conditions change, is likely to produce revolt.

This realistic picture is one it would be to the profit of the American people to set off against the imaginary view of Europe which our advocates of American altruism present or imply. Our peace societies, our internationalists, our advocates of permanent involvement in European politics and persistent compromise of American strength and independence have no standing for their efforts save upon the assumption that European nations and governments are disposed to similar self-sacrifice, pacifism, and compromise of national interest or ambition. With such a world our proposed altruism might be justified practically as well as ideally. But such a world does not exist. The tyranny of the small minority which rules Russia, the Machiavellian nationalism which dominates Italy, the bellicose separatism which marks the policy of the small states of the allied liberation, the masterful strategy of the great powers, give the lie to American sentimentalism.

In America we, too, have our minority, a minority of vicarious altruists, but it is far from oppressed. It is organized, well furnished, and pretentious, and it exerts an influence apparently upon those in office and upon our present policy out of all proportion to its political weight, when that weight is tested in political referendum, or in its intellectual deserts. Composed of apologetic Americans, pedagogues inexperienced in the struggle of life, lady amateurs in international affairs, politician clerics, bored with their sacred office and in search of a lost influence, and pseudo-educated humanitarians given to wishful thinking, it represents an influence with which no other government has seriously to deal.

The naïveté and political timidity of our politicians make concessions to this influence in spite of repeated rebukes by public opinion, when that opinion has opportunity to express itself. It is a situation without its like in any other country, and is fraught with future embarrassment for the United States. The nation cannot afford to have its policies dictated by this pretentious minority. The American people needs to wake from its long preoccupation with its domestic accomplishments and private activities and see to it that its critical policies are formulated in accordance with its interests and the nation's opportunities.

VALUE OF THE CLASSICS.

The Inquiring Reporter the other day asked five wayfarers whether they thought the acquisition of foreign languages, either modern or classic, is desirable for Americans. The responses, which we think was probably representative, was encouraging for the teacher of languages in our schools and colleges. Four of five answers were favorable, and we were pleased to find that only in one of the four were the classic languages discriminated against.

It has been a popular fallacy to call classic Latin and Greek dead languages. Because they are not spoken colloquially, or written or read by any one but scholars, does not prove them dead. On the contrary, they are living constituents of the speech of the day. The grocer, the plumber, the farmer is using them, is compelled to use them in the ordinary transactions of life. They are as common as his bread or coffee and more necessary. He cannot do without them, for they are an essential part of his communication with his fellow beings.

But the matter is broader than this. Leaving the question of speech, there is the question of the knowledge of classical thought. It may be gained without a reading knowledge of Greek or Latin through translations of classic literature.

That is fortunate, for such command of either language as makes reading of the original forms easy and pleasurable will be accomplished by only a small minority. But it is our conviction that the thought and judgment of educated men and women would be greatly enriched and strengthened by a knowledge of the Greek and Latin classics in translation. The tendency of our education, even our conspicuous leaders, to snap judgments, to quick social and political remedies, and to superficial diagnosis of current events would have a very wholesome and much needed correction in a knowledge of what men were thinking and doing two thousand years ago. It is a very enlightening experience to read Thucydides or Plato or Aristotle, to realize that they and Horace and Cicero and Caesar are not merely names for the bored schoolboy, but men like ourselves, though great men, dealing with problems of life which have not yet been solved and speaking to us with a voice astonishingly modern.

To know this is a profit as practical as any knowledge can be. The classics are not dead, but living, a treasure richer today than in the past, which every great civilization has profited by and built upon and which no people can afford to neglect. Our public leadership would be better for more of it. Our public opinion would be far wiser if it drew upon it.

THE EARLY BIRDS AT BASEL.

After a good deal of delay, the statutes proposed for the international bank have been published. At this writing the trustee agreements have not yet been published, although the information is no doubt available to persons properly placed. In international affairs, it appears, there are pre-release showings to which only the elect are admitted. The Versailles treaty was launched in much the same fashion. Certain bankers had the text long before there was any intention of letting the generality of mankind see it. The United States senate received the treaty not from the state department but from THE CHICAGO TRIBUNE, whose Paris staff managed to obtain a copy and get it to this country.

It remains to be seen whether the gentlemen who are privy to the secrets of the bank will feather their nests as a consequence of their advance information regarding its structure and functions; but no one, we think, need be surprised if that is what happens.

Editorial of the Day

SOMETHING NEW UNDER THE SUN.
(Cleveland Plain Dealer.)

The thousands of midwestern football fans who saw the Michigan-Harvard football game Saturday learned a great deal about the technique of our gridiron sport from the defeated Harvard team. They saw for the first time the lateral pass employed as an important link in a major team's offense, and saw also that the forward pass has ground gaining possibilities which teams and coaches in this section have scarcely realized.

Harvard is the one team that has set out definitely to employ the lateral pass. The hair raising run made by Putnam at Ann Arbor Saturday resulted from this new weapon of football's offense. That it will come into new employment, as the forward pass has in the last ten years or so, is entirely probable now that its worth has been demonstrated and a special fumble rule has been adopted to protect it. No less noteworthy from the point of view of a midwestern football observer than Quarterback Wood's accurate passing was the ability of the Harvard pass receivers to plant themselves from one side line to another and at varying distances down the center of the field. Any one not familiar with the rules of the game could easily have believed in the last Harvard touchdown drive that every member of the team was eligible for and was receiving passes.

From the point of view of football progress it is unfortunate that Coach Arnold Horween of Harvard has decided to retire. He has done some real pioneering in our gridiron sport along lines that promise all but a revolution in the game. A Harvard Horween-coached team of about 1925, one would imagine, would have nothing in common with the old Haughton-coached teams except eleven crimson jerseys.

THE GREATER CALAMITY.
Sandy had just arrived in a strange town. Very reluctantly he came to the conclusion that he would never find his hotel unless he engaged a taxi. After five minutes or so the taxi came to the top of a steep hill. The driver applied his brakes, but to the man's horror, nothing happened. The taxi began to rush down the hill, gathering speed every second.

"Help!" shouted the driver. "The brakes are gone! I can't stop the car!"

Sandy's head was out of the window in a flash. "Can't ye?" he exclaimed. "Then, mon, for goodness' sake, stop the motor!"—(Answers, London.)

How to Keep Well

TO AVOID GAME DISEASES.

WE are hearing much about tulariaemia. The latest is that it is a disease of quails and that it may be contracted from this game bird. There seems a possibility that it may exist in many game birds and game animals, and that all hunters and those who handle the kill may be subject to it.

In 1911 Dr. T. B. Beatty of Salt Lake City saw his first case of it. He called it deerly fever. The man whom he saw it with had been bitten by a deerfly. He found that the common opinion among the people was that it was an old disease among wild rabbits and that occasionally it prevailed as widespread epidemics. There were stories, generally not well authenticated, of epidemics in which dead rabbits were found everywhere in the brush. The theory of the people was that it was a rabbit disease which was carried to man occasionally by the deerfly. This insect was the carrier just as the mosquito carries yellow fever, the flea plagues the louse typhus and the fly typhoid.

Dr. Beatty reported his observations and the information he had gained to the surgeon general of the public health service and to the state health officers in one of their meetings. Soon after Dr. McCoy found a disease in rodents which was called tulariaemia and which was due to a bacillus which he discovered.

The next step was the demonstration by Francis that the deerly fever of Beatty and the French way of saying that which was the French way of saying that the disease of the quail was the same disease. The next step was the demonstration that the wild rabbits found in the Washington market were often infected with tulariaemia and that some people who skinned and butchered rabbits developed the disease. The next was the proof that tulariaemia is a disease of human beings is widely scattered over America and that several wild animals and game birds are infected with it.

The known methods of avoiding it are:

Not to kill any sick animals or sick birds.

Not to handle killed game with bare hands. Especially to wear gloves when skinning and cutting up game.

In butchering game, to examine the viscera, and particularly the liver, and to reject all diseased organs and, as a rule, not to eat any animal that appears to be unclean.

In course of time a man may learn how to recognize the disease. The skin of rabbits and mares in the liver neither of which has any relation to tulariaemia, but until one does it is safer to reject all animals and birds that appear abnormal.

NOW A SAFE PROCEDURE.

V. J. M. writes: 1. Does procaine when injected into the spine, anesthetize the entire body below the point of injection? 2. Is it safe to administer lockjaw serum to a person who has been inoculated with diphtheria antitoxin? 3. Are raw eggs indigestible?

REPLY.
1. Yes. Anesthesia by spinal injection is now recognized as a safe and valuable procedure.
2. As a rule it is. It may be advisable to give a preliminary testing injection.
3. No.

CAUSE OF BIRTHMARKS.

Miss E. S. writes: 1. What is the cause of birthmarks? 2. Is there a remedy to remove them? 3. If the skin is removed where the mark is located will it return with the appearance of new skin?

REPLY.
1. Birthmarks are caused by an overdevelopment of blood vessels in and near an area of skin.
2. They can be removed by any one of several operations.
3. Yes. The mark reappears somewhat below the outer skin layers.

EMPLOYMENT AGENCY CHARGE.

Chicago, Nov. 12.—(Legal Friend of the People.)—I was to go to an employment office, applied for a job and paid $20 for it. They sent me from place to place where there was no work to get. When I asked for my money back they went to work and got a job for which I needed references which I didn't have. A friend of theirs whom they phoned promised to give me a reference, but I didn't get through with their scheme and consequently didn't get the work. Now, can I get my money back?

C. O. A. Section 4 of the act relating to private employment agencies is, in part, as follows: "A registration fee shall not exceed two dollars and may be charged by such licensed agency when such agency shall be at actual expense in advertising such individual applicant, or in looking up references for such applicant. No licensed person or persons shall, as a condition to registering or obtaining employment for such applicant, require such applicant to subscribe to any publication or exact any other fee, compensation or reward other than the registration fee aforesaid, and a further fee, the amount of which shall be agreed upon between such applicant and such licensed person to be payable at a time such as may be agreed upon in writing, but the further fee aforesaid shall not be received by such licensed person before the applicant has been tendered a position by said licensed person."

TRIBE LAW DEPARTMENT.

WIDOWS' THRESHOLD.

Chicago, Nov. 12.—(Friend of the People.)—In July, 1915, I married a German citizen who received his first papers in 1919 and applied for his second papers, but died before receiving them. I was born and raised in Chicago and have never left the country. I would like to know whether I have to apply for citizenship?

W. F. L. Before the act of Sept. 22, 1922, a married woman was of the same citizenship status as her husband, but on the date of the husband's death she could, if residing in the United States, resume her former citizenship status. However, from the date of the passage of the act of Sept. 22, 1922, married women were placed on independent footing as to citizenship.

If the writer's husband died on or after that date she must file a petition for naturalization and be naturalized in order to regain her citizenship.

District Director of Naturalization.

TOLD IN COLOR.

(FOR SPIKE.)

Yellow the gleam of iron lamps
On tile and stone and oak;
Western men play poker
In the shifting, drifting smoke.
Red is the color of diamonds,
Richly they gleam in a flush,
But there's no way to catch the gleam—
Brown faces never blush.

High are the stacks when high hands meet
And the highest hand will ride—
I lost my roll on a diamond flush:
But the air was fresh outside!

Blue are the grapes in autumn frost,
Cool to the teeth, if you mind 'em;
A dark-haired girl with Spanish eyes
Showed me where to find 'em.

Yellow the moon at midnight
In a patio rendezvous;
Blue grapes and Spanish eyes—why cuss
The five red cards I drew?

COLORADO PRIZE.

It's a Wonderful Language.

It was related in the Sabbath newspapers that George Gould, progressing from Deauville to Paris, stopped at the best hotel in the little town of Evreux and liked it so much he immediately bought and now it's the favorite stopping place for all the tourists. What we want to know is how George found out which is the best hotel in Evreux. There are only two good ones in the town, and when we landed there once we didn't know which one we should go to. So we asked the taxi driver. A look of deep disgust came over the face of the taxi driver and shrugging his shoulders he spread out both hands, palms up.

"Comme ça," he said, "comme ça." Which was the French way of saying that whichever hotel we went to we would wish we had gone to the other. Or maybe a more literal translation would be "fifty-fifty." And he was right.

LISTENING BREATHLESSLY.

To the loud speaker, Saturday we heard a football announcer (not Quin) say, "Notice I say Noter Dame. I don't care how the highbrows pronounce it, the American way of pronouncing is good enough for me." We hurriedly switched over to Quin before that radio announcer said Perdue. He would.

ALBERT! THE NAME IS TYLWYTH TEG.

R. H. L. I am willing to bet you a twelve course dinner against a stale cracker that our pet cat, which is named Cleopatra, is superior both physically and mentally to that four-legged hunk o' waddling hamburger which you call Pollywag. Recently, after an extensive study of parrots, I grabbed the brilliant idea of teaching Cleopatra to talk. Success! That four-coated mouse-trap has become so loquacious that she gets on our nerves. She has the damndest habit of laying on the floor an' reading aloud from the evening paper an' making dizzy comments.

Well, sir, yesterday I breezed into our igloo an' found Cleopatra sitting in front of a mouse, an' yelling "Come out! Come out, you big bun, an' see what happens!"

"Cleopatra," says I to her, "I was standing on the Boul Mish today an' I got an unobstructed view of Twirling Twig, the piece of high-class boloney which Dick Little dragged back from Jolly old Hingland."

"I'd like to get my lamps on that Cockney blighter," says her. "Is it true that Mr. Little bought Ticklish Tag during a heavy fog an' fainted later on when he got a good look at the creature?"

"Certainly not!" says I. "This Twirling Twig is a very handsome Flea Incubator. If you saw him you'd probably fall in love with him."

"G'wan," sneers her, "that hunk o' Indian Stew wouldn't make no hit with me—I'd chew the fur pants of Mr. Turpentine Toq quicker than a hundred bucks faded away in Wall Street."

At this moment a mouse stuck his head out of the hole nearby. BLAM!! Mr. Mouse received a left hook which knocked him off this planet.

"There!" says Cleopatra, pointing at the corpse. "That's just what'll happen to Tylwyth Tub if we ever meet!"

As for Mr. Little, I challenge you to bring Tiggliv Tib over to our house an' we'll put those two boxes in a trunk an' close the lid. A half hour later we'll open the trunk an' see who climbs out.

I'll bet my shirt that it won't be Timalyn Tob! SNOWSHOE AL.

How Do They Do It?
We have always pictured Edgar Wallace as being a weird looking person with black goggles, green whiskers, and a furtive look. Also, that he wrote four detective stories at one and the same time, using both hands and feet. Instead of that, he is a quiet, calm individual who might be either a missionary to darkest Africa or a complacent football coach with a winning team. We eagerly waited at luncheon Friday for him to display some of his power of detection which makes him a best seller every day or so. And it happened. The waitress put down a large slice of pumpkin pie in front of him. She put it down somewhat dubiously, for Mr. Wallace is very, very English, and we Americans know that the English hold our pies in horror. But Mr. Wallace looked at the pie, then touched it with his fork. "Pumpkin!" said Mr. Wallace.

THERE ARE sixty-eight Cabots and twenty-two Lowells in the new Boston social register. Naturally there would be fewer Lowells there to justify the dear old rhyme:

Here's to the city of Boston,
The home of the bean and the cod;
Where the Cabots speak only to Lowells
And the Lowells speak only to God.

LAGNAPPE.

A GENEALOGIST down in Washington declares that Al Smith and Andy Mellon are related. Friends of Al will probably come back with a roar to the general effect that the campaign is over and they don't see any use of allying mud around now.

AND IT USED to be said that all they did down in Indiana was to write poetry and story books. Also, children, they are very cunning in doing astonishing tricks with a small piece of hog's hide sewn together and blown full of air. Hurrah for Tippecanoe and Phelan too.

LAST SATURDAY Purdue University (INDIANA) licked Iowa. Notre Dame University (INDIANA) defeated California, and the State University (INDIANA) walloped Northwestern. The idea is going to take root throughout the country and grow and grow that they know something about football down in that state (INDIANA).

THE SNAKE BITE AND THE CURE

FROM THE TRIBUNE'S COLUMNS

65 YEARS AGO TODAY

NOVEMBER 18, 1864.

THE NEWS.—Gen. Sherman is certainly in the war path. A dispatch from Cincinnati last evening, giving details of the expedition, was suppressed by the war department. It will not be contrabanded, however, to say of it that it contained nothing to comfort the enemy.

LOUISVILLE, Ky.—Private reliable news, dated Rome, Ga., Nov. 16, says the destruction of manufacturing, mills and buildings of value to the enemy at Atlanta was commenced at 3:30 o'clock yesterday p. m. The order was issued by Gen. Combs. The enemy attacked our pickets while engaged in the destruction, but were driven off.

LOUISVILLE, Ky. (Later).—Sherman carries sixty days' rations of bread and beef cattle, and will depend on the country for other necessaries. He will meet no enemy on the way.

NEW YORK.—No official intelligence has been received from Sherman for a week. Army of the Potomac special contains no news. The Times' special with Sheridan says guerrillas still infest the roads, rendering movements of wagon trains impossible without strong escorts.

NEW ORLEANS, La.—Maj. Gen. Canby, while going up the White river to direct matters in Arkansas, was fired upon by guerrillas and wounded in the thigh.

CHICAGO.—The National Watch company of this city, capital $200,000, has located its extensive works at Elgin, Kane county—a big thing for that thriving little city, whose citizens in securing it prove that they know what's o'clock.

CHICAGO.—Miss Ellen G. Iglehart, daughter of N. P. Iglehart, and Orrin P. Booth were married on Nov. 15 by the Rev. Dr. J. C. Burroughs. Miss Lois Guess and Jacob Winlock were married on the same day by the Rev. Richard De Baptiste.

30 YEARS AGO TODAY

NOVEMBER 18, 1899.

LONDON.—The Boers, after capturing an armored train of the British, advanced toward Estcourt, whose garrison may withdraw. Experts express the fear that Kruger's forces may occupy all lower Natal before the British come to the relief. Buller has 23,500 fresh troops, but there will be much delay in moving them to the front. The Times special states that Ladysmith is being shelled night and day by the Boers and that Gen. White is hard pressed. The Boers hold 62 British officers and 1,304 men in the prisons at Pretoria.

CHICAGO.—Capt. Lewis Lucas Troy, superintendent of the 4th division of the United States railway mail service, died at his home, 882 West Monroe street, from neuralgia of the heart, at the age of 60. He had been in the railway mail service more than 30 years.

CHICAGO.—Kid McPartland of New York and Matty Matthews of Brooklyn fought six fast rounds to a draw at the Star theater.

CHICAGO.—Michael Emil Rollinger was hanged in the county jail for the murder of his wife in their home, 186 Racine avenue, on Dec. 16, 1898. He protested his innocence to the crowd that witnessed the execution.

10 YEARS AGO TODAY

NOVEMBER 18, 1919.

CHICAGO.—Chicago remains dry—legally dry. Federal Judge Carpenter upheld congress in all its liquor regulations and dismissed the Hannah & Hogg petition to restrain dry law enforcement. Judge Louis FitzHenry, considering the same motions made by wet leaders of Peoria, announced he concurs in every phase with the Chicago edict. On motion of Attorney Levy Mayer, who brought both suits to restrain the government from enforcing the prohibition act, Judge Carpenter allowed his decision to remain in statu quo pending the Supreme court's decision on all dry law protests.

CHICAGO.—Before the end of the week the public utilities commission will order the surface lines to reduce fares to 6 cents.

CHICAGO.—Suspension of 40 trains, making 106 taken out on various lines since the beginning of the coal strike, was the latest move in drastic fuel conservation.

MOHAMMED AND THE DRY.

Chicago, Nov. 16.—Carey Orr's cartoon, which represented the dries as on a prayer rug reverent to the Alkoran, had a touch of beautiful verity. It seems that when Mohammed was on the make, and there were many who regarded him only as a big camel and date man who luckily had married a rich widow, a couple of sheiks got all lit up, appeared before him and were indifferent to his prophetic mission.

You have to hand it to Mohammed for having Allah's broadcasting station in good working order, for he soon announced that Allah had forbidden wine. Outside the matter of turning the water into wine, which in the New Testament must be the dries, there are other reasons for their turning to the tenets of Mohammed. The Koran says that none shall stay to dinner with the prophet without special invitation. This is the same close attention to convenience which the dries try to get out of the United States constitution, and which they only can find in the Anti-Saloon league.

If the dries only would go over to Mohammed or Mahmoud, if they like the simpler spelling, they could dress the leaguers as dervishes and put on a show to which the unregenerate would contribute most willingly. Yours for greater consistency.

A DUTY TO OUR VETERANS.

Hines, Ill., Nov. 14.—Your editorial, "A Duty to Our Veterans," is one for which thousands of disabled veterans are grateful to THE TRIBUNE. This Tribune and the public may not know that in the Edward Hines Jr. hospital alone there are more than two hundred disabled veterans, suffering with tuberculosis, and of that number more than two-thirds are uncompensated, and among the uncompensated more than one-half of them have dependent families. Therefore one may imagine the suffering.

When I saw your editorial I certainly wished that I had enough money to purchase and have mailed to every congressman and every senator a copy of THE TRIBUNE containing it.

WALTER E. ROGERS.

POST-WAR DISEASES.

Chicago, Nov. 15.—The editorial, "A Duty to Our Veterans," appearing in THE TRIBUNE of Nov. 11, was well meaning, but apparently without full knowledge of the facts. To extend the presumptive period for service connection an additional five years, or until Jan. 1, 1930, in behalf of war veterans suffering from tuberculosis, would be discriminatory legislation and, furthermore, it would be unnecessary.

Veterans having tuberculosis enjoy special favors under the law as it now stands, and this amendment would give additional reason for complaint on the part of those suffering from heart, stomach, or other organic diseases, who feel they are now discriminated against. The reasons for extending the presumptive period for tuberculosis alone are not sound. If this amendment should be passed by congress, there are thousands of ex-service men now free from

BERLIN REDS GET 'LION'S SHARE' AT TORRID ELECTION

in Initial Effort.

BY SIGRID SCHULTZ.

BERLIN, Nov. 17.—How rapidly the communists and fascists are advancing in Germany can be seen by the election returns on Berlin's municipal council today, in which the communists succeeded in usurping second place, heretofore held by the nationalists. The nationalists held their strength in the council despite the loss of nine seats on the face of partial returns. The communists gained about fourteen members.

Adolf Hitler's fascist party crashed its way into the council with 13 seats on making its initial appearance in municipal elections, making inroads on the nationalists' ranks.

Communists Hold Victory March.
With brass bands, blazing torches, and songs, the communists are parading the streets of Berlin's working quarters tonight to celebrate what they claim is an overwhelming victory in the elections for Berlin's town council.

The final result of the elections will not be known until the early hours of the morning, but the masses are celebrating partial victories, punctuating them with free-for-all fights between the alleged winners and losers.

So far the police have arrested 337 fighting agitators, 230 of whom belong to the Hitlerites. Hospitals report only a few casualties.

It was a picturesque election with a movie-like chase of police trucks hot after trucks full of national socialists. The main affair started when five fascist motor cars turned into a clan of communists on Koellnstrasse, and the police lorries deemed it wiser not to follow them on the street, which was the center of the May day battles.

Police Continue Chase.

The communists claim that the national socialists fired the first shot. The national socialists claim that the population bombarded them from windows with stones and whatever missiles were available until they turned in flight.

The police kept in hot pursuit. After a chase through the whole town to the suburb of Tegel the fascists fired into the communists' headquarters. The police cars caught up with them and with the help of the communists the cops arrested 270 fascists.

In Potsdam, the headquarters of the nationalists, the elections passed off quietly, with the fascists scoring a victory over the nationalist and bourgeois parties.

ARMY AIR CORPS IS CRIPPLED BY LACK OF FUNDS

Fechet Points to Hazards and Pilot Shortage.

[Chicago Tribune From Service.]
Washington, D. C., Nov. 17.—[Special.]—Lack of funds for training with three other branches of the army, this condition cannot be corrected until the necessary increase in equipment or units becomes available. Lack of funds for the transportation of reserve officers prevents their assignment to foreign possessions, where an acute need exists for additional pilots to operate the aircraft assigned.

"A new system of classifying reserves according to their flying efficiency has been put into effect," the air corps chief said. "This system calls for a lengthy report showing the physical, flying and professional status of every active reserve officer. The report also shows the amount and type of flying engaged in by reserves each month."
"These reports disclose that, although there are 5,954 reserves in the air corps, only about 1,500 of these are qualified for flying service. Some 400 of this 1,500 are qualified for immediate service; the remainder would require further training before they could be used in tactical units for combat service."
Maj. Gen. Fechet said that a number of long distance cross-country flights of tactical units, particularly bombardment, pursuit and attack planes, will be made this coming year to points as far distant as Panama. The army air corps plans, he said, to concentrate all its air forces some time during the 1931 fiscal year for a maneuver in conjunction with ground troops.

Father learns about cough medicines

"Is this the Driving Park Drug Store?" phoned Mr. P. Pozzi of 1270 Thomas St., Memphis, Tenn. "My wife and my daughter have both got coughs and nothing they've used did them any good. What cough medicine can you recommend?" he continued. "Why don't you try REM?" came the answer over the phone. Mr. Pozzi decided it was worth trying, and it surely proved to be. He himself adds "It worked like magic and soon stopped the coughs." Many others who have used REM think it "works like magic" too, but there's really no magic about it. Just a remarkably good formula, developed out of 44 years' pharmaceutical experience. Try it yourself, next time you get a cough!

REM's exclusive formula explains its splendid results. Economical, too!

WARNS POLITICS STANDS TO RUIN DIXIE METHODISTS

Minister Sees G. O. P. Lobby at Next Conference

Atlanta, Ga., Nov. 17.—[Special.]—Predicting the utter ruin of the Methodist Episcopal Church, South, if the present policy of "politicizing" the pulpit is continued, Dr. Rembert G. Smith, of Washington, Ga., has issued a public statement following refusal of the North Georgia Methodist conference to allow him to express his views. Dr. Smith, who has just resigned as a pastor after 25 years, was champion of the movement to take the pulpit out of politics.

As a logical result of the continuance of this policy, the minister said: "There are omens that the most powerful lobby at the general conference next May in Dallas, will be the emissaries of the Republican party."

Won't Forget Antagonism.

Dr. Smith declared that the motives influencing some preachers to go into politics to effect some reforms was praiseworthy, but that they should remember that no party stays in power forever and that it is "vain to expect that politicians will be so forgiving as to forget the bitter antagonism to their party shown by church leaders and they will be hard-hearted and deaf to the cries of church leaders when they get in power."

"It is the glory of the church that she cries out with prophetic persistence against such evils as the liquor traffic, commercialized vice and war. It is to be hoped that her voice will become even louder," he asserted. "But the passion for social justice is not all that the church needs in order to abolish abuses from the life of the world. There must be not only the stern impassioned stress, but there must be wisdom of method; unless the church shows such wisdom she will have to pay too dear a cost for the reforms and they will be delayed in accomplishment."

Good Men on Both Sides.

"There has never been in the United States a political battle in which there were not equally good men on opposite sides, but this fact preachers, turned politicians, are almost sure to forget. When the pulpit, or the press, or other agencies of the church go into personal and party politics, there is real danger that they will cease to denounce, as they should, the evil in the other candidate or party, nor will they recognize the good in them."

"The political mood often shows itself by the denial that there is any good on the other side, but the church should seek to see the good in all candidates and in all parties and give them due credit for it. This is practically impossible when the church goes into personal and party politics."

U. S. ATTORNEY NAMED TO ASSIST IN SURVEY ON DRY ENFORCEMENT

The announcement by the commission today said that it had arranged with the attorney general to obtain the services of Woodcock for a short period. He has been attorney for the Maryland district since 1923.

THREE UNHORSED IN FOX HUNT AT ONWENTSIA CLUB

Three leaders of Chicago society were unhorsed yesterday at the fox hunt at the Onwentsia club near Lake Forest, but all escaped with slight bruises.

Mrs. Kimball Salisbury, 1415 Astor street, and James Simpson Jr. of Glenview, fell at the same time yesterday when their horses ran into a blind ditch about three feet deep. The riders apparently did not know the ditch was before them. Mrs. Salisbury also fell last Friday and was slightly injured.

The third rider to fall was Mrs. Noble Branden Judah, 740 North Green Bay road, Lake Forest, whose horse slipped in the soft clay after taking the last barrier. She was thrown clear and was uninjured. Col. Judah fractured a rib three weeks ago when he fell from his mount.

RUSSIA STORMS CHINA TRENCHES; SET TOWN AFIRE

Planes Join in Attack in Early Morning.

BY JOHN POWELL.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service]
MUKDEN, Nov. 17.—This soviet force launched a strong attack at 1 a. m. today against the Chinese trenches at Dalai Nor, about 30 miles east of Manchouli. Shortly after day-break soviet planes joined in the attack, dropping incendiary bombs on the Dalai Nor Chinese Eastern railway station and large Dalai Nor coal mines, as well as workers' houses, causing serious fires which are still burning.

Telephone and telegraph wires are slashed and military headquarters here do not know the results of today's fighting. It is believed here that the Dalai Nor attack is possibly the beginning of a genuine soviet military advance for the purpose of occupying the Chinese Eastern railway as far as Hailar and the entire Barga section of the Heilung Kiang province.

Mongolian Cavalry Join Attack.
It is also reported that the soviet military advance on Dalai Nor is accompanied by Mongolian cavalry, under soviet officers, who are operating from outer Mongolia. The soviet broadcasting station at Harbin for the last three days has been alleging Chinese attacks against soviet lines, which the Chinese deny. The Chinese now claim that the soviet are preceding their attacks and raids into Chinese territory with allegations from the Harbin radio station claiming Chinese aggressions.

Marshal Chang Hsueh-liang is continuing to send strong reinforcements to the border. Unless the Manchurian authorities are able to receive financial assistance from Nanking, hardly likely because of the civil war in the Yangtze valley, it is believed that an early collapse of the Chinese defenses in north Manchuria is likely.

Financial Burden Heavy.
While Manchurian officials are uncommunicative, it is known that the financial situation is serious. It is reported that last month's salaries are still unpaid, while paper currency is slumping in value. The president of the Chinese Eastern railway, Lu Yung-kwan, has been here several days in conference with Chang Hsueh-liang, as well as Chang Tzu-hsueh, the latter head of the Kirin government. It is believed that both are bringing pressure to bear on Chang Hsueh-liang in an effort to make a compromise with the soviet Russians in order to prevent a possible occupation of the entire Chinese Eastern railway, as well as Harbin.

Unconfirmed reports here say that the soviet Russian officials at Dalai Nor, when approached by unofficial Chinese envoys recently, in another effort to secure peace, told the Chinese that they will not be satisfied with anything except complete surrender of the Chinese.

Demand China Remove Troops.

The soviet also demand that they be permitted to resume extraterritorial rights, similar to other powers, and that they may also be permitted the right of free navigation on the Sungari river, as well as complete control of both banks of the Argun, Amur, and Ussuri rivers. They also demand practically the complete withdrawal of all Chinese troops excepting small police forces in boundary cities.

Chinese educational bodies here are alarmed and are planning a mass meeting for the purpose of appealing to the United States, hoping to induce President Hoover to appoint a commission to investigate the alleged soviet Russian violation by invading Chinese territory.

SHOOT FOUR WITH GUNS.
Two pairs of brothers were arrested by a detective bureau squad yesterday when a sawed-off shotgun, a rifle, four white masks, and a policeman's badge were found in the room they were occupying at 2550 North Crawford avenue. The youths are Alex and Raymond, 18 and 15 years old, and Harry and John Kuffs, 19 and 18 years old.

CROWD OF 250,000 VISITS "MIRACLE" GRAVE AT MALDEN

Malden, Mass., Nov. 17.—(AP)—A Sunday crowd estimated by police at 250,000 persons gathered here today to pray at the grave of Father Patrick J. Power in Holy Cross cemetery, where reputed miraculous cures have been reported in the last three weeks. It was by far the largest number of pilgrims so far to visit the tomb in one day.

Postal Inspector Chief

Found Dead in His Bed

Washington, D. C., Nov. 17.—(AP)—Grant E. Miller, chief inspector of the post office department and known throughout the postal service, was found dead in bed today after illness contracted while attending the funeral of the late Senator Burton of Ohio.

For more than 30 years he was in the department, and figured during the latter part in solution of some notorious mail robbery cases. He was 62.

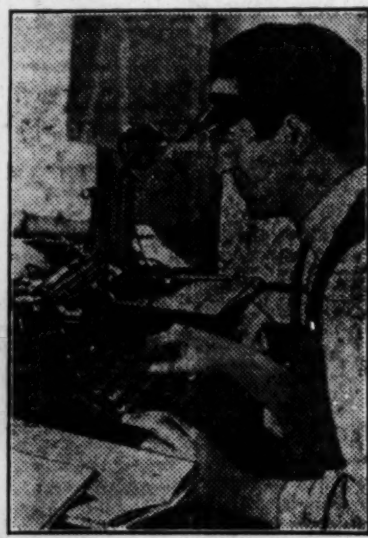

When a "White Collar Man" Goes into the Army

He's pretty sure to find out something besides how to salute

YOU might envy a man who makes his living just by writing things on a typewriter, but there's a lot about his job that isn't so good.

So we were told at any rate by Mr. Solon S. Bloom of 3503 Woodbrook Avenue, Baltimore, Md., whose health began to give way because his work kept him bowed over his desk and gave him no bodily exercise.

"I decided to get away to a military training camp," says Mr. Bloom, "thinking the rough and tumble with the army would do me good for a month. I asked the doctor what to do about my condition. 'I've seen men, I've known men,' he said. 'I know what they eat, drink, and how they live. I know cathartics, physics, and all the ways men try to keep themselves regular—and the only two that together well are men and Nujol. Physics gripe, cathartics take the moisture out of the stomach and in-

to Learn How to Live

testines; both may be harmful and may become habitual. Nujol gets into the system in the best way, soothes and heals the membranes and expels bodily poisons normally, naturally, easily, so that you are regular as a clock work."

That was what Mr. Bloom learned when he left his typewriter and went into the army, and you can learn the same thing if you are like most other people.

Remember Nujol is not a medicine, for it contains no drugs of any kind. It is simply bodily lubrication that everybody needs.

You can get a bottle of Nujol at any good drug store, in a sealed package, for the price of a couple of good cigars. If you will start today and try it for two weeks you will agree with Mr. Bloom's discovery that Nujol is the easy normal way to keep well and make a success out of your life. You will be astonished at the results!

REDS OF RUSSIA FIRE PARTY CHIEF IN POLITICAL ROW

Powerful Body Also Warns Other Leaders.

MOSCOW, U. S. R., Nov. 17.—(AP)—Nikolai Bukharin today was expelled from the powerful political bureau of the central committee of the communist party as the leader of the right wing opposition in the party.

For more than 10 years, Bukharin has been one of the most prominent leaders of the communist party. He was for many years editor of Pravda, the official organ of the party, until removed early this year. He had also been a member of the executive committee of the party and a member of the presidium council of supreme economy.

Other Leaders Warned.

At the same time today, Alexis Rykoff and Michael Tomsky, also members of the political bureau, besides holding important posts in the soviet union government, were warned that, if they continued to oppose the present policy of the party, similar measures would be immediately taken against them.

Commissar of Labor Uglanov and several others broke with the right wing after admitting their "mistakes" before a plenary session of the central committee of the communist party. In forecasting today's events, the official government organ, Izvestia, nearly two weeks ago said that the results of the first year of the five year industrialization plan had proved that members of the right wing were in the wrong.

LOSE OWN LEADERS

BY DONALD DAY.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]
RIGA, Latvia, Nov. 17.—Groups of dissatisfied workers in Russian industry will be deprived of their leaders through a new plan adopted by the central executive committee of the soviet government, which has ordered the recently appointed chiefs of the various industries to immediately select 15,000 workers for transfer to other work.

The committee met to discuss the tendency of soviet unions to develop trade union principles, such as defending workers against the administration of syndicates and trusts.

Teach Soviet Loyalty.

Commissar Tomski, who was recently removed from the presidency of the all-Russian council of the profession of unions for advocating trade union principles, was replaced by Deputy Commissars Svernick and Wernberg, originators of the new scheme.

Henceforth, when a management notices a worker gaining a following he will be transferred to a "responsible post" in one of the government departments or co-operatives, where he will be developed more in loyalty to the soviet regime.

CENSUS BUREAU ASKS CO-OPERATION; CALLS 17 REGIONAL PARLEYS

Washington, D. C., Nov. 17.—(AP)—Seventeen regional conferences extending from coast to coast have been called by the census bureau advisory committee to acquaint business men and citizens with the importance of the coming decennial census and to obtain national cooperation in making the work successful.

Representatives from nearly every community within a radius of a hundred miles have been invited to the first conference at New York City Nov. 22.

Friday's Moscow Izvestia reports that the Don coal trust is nominating 1,010 workers for a position in the soviet bureaucracy. Other industries are advancing similar lists, which the Izvestia reports will be controlled by the special commission.

Manager for Each Trust.

The majority of the workers who will be transferred are at present members of the factory soviets, who until three months ago had the last word in the management of soviet enterprises. Because of the failure of the soviets to reduce production costs and increase the efficiency of the workers, the communist party decided in September on the appointment of a manager for each trust or syndicate, with unlimited power, who will be responsible for fulfilling the government's program.

The factory soviets are dissatisfied with the new arrangement, and members of these councils will be removed to other jobs through the new decree, which orders the transfer of workers to be effected within six months.

ROB GROCER OF $125.

Logansport, Ind., Nov. 17.—(Special.)—Two youthful bandits last night held up and robbed Frank Schroeder, grocer, of $125. It was the sixth store holdup here within the last four weeks.

M'MANUS' TRIAL FOR ROTHSTEIN'S DEATH TO OPEN

Motley Group Assembled to Give Evidence.

New York, Nov. 17.—(Special.)—The story of the murder of Arnold Rothstein, a striking figure from the shadowy outskirts of the underworld who ruled the city's gaming tables for many years, will begin unfolding tomorrow in a courtroom of the Criminal Courts building as George A. McManus goes to trial for the slaying.

A year and ten days from the date of the death of Rothstein in Polyclinic hospital, where he refused to the last to tell who had shot him in a room in the Park Central hotel, the state will start its attempt to prove the crime "a simple one," as District Attorney Banton phrased it.

As the clerk of the court calls the tale of the murder of Rothstein, a small army of witnesses will be waiting in the background ready to take the stand and tell what they know of the murder. They will be as motley a group as has been called to give evidence in a trial in recent years.

Hotel Guests Called.

There will be big time gamblers, characters from the race tracks, Broadway worshippers and handy men, associates of the dead gambler in his devious enterprises, legitimate business men, and guests of the hotel on the night that Rothstein, a bullet in his groin, lunged from McManus' room. The guests include several women, who had come to New York for business or for pleasure and found themselves suddenly enmeshed in a crime, such as they might have read about but never expected to encounter in real life.

The opening will find both sides confident, and no one more certain of acquittal than McManus himself, a big, bulky man with none of the gambler's impassivity about him—black haired, florid, muscular, and ever smiling—sure that his protestations of innocence will be proven during the trial. He preferred today to let his attorney, James D. C. Murray, do the talking.

"We are ready, and that is all I care to say," Murray declared.

Mr. Banton was equally brief and emphatic.

Judge Not to Preside.

The proceedings will open in the courtroom of the criminal branch of the Supreme court, although the case is on the calendar of general sessions. The room was chosen as the largest in the building; it has little else to commend it, however, for it is located across from a busy fire engine house, and its acoustics, in the opinion of attorneys, are poorer than those of any other courtroom.

General Sessions Judge Charles C. Nott is to preside.

It is expected that three days will be required to select the jury. Mr. Banton has 56 witnesses he will call and he has estimated that the trial will last about three weeks, the duration depending largely on the scope of the defense cross-examination and the number of witnesses which it will call.

The state's witnesses were reported to be here or ready to proceed here. The whereabouts of those who had reached the city was carefully shielded. They had been instructed to reserve their narratives for the courtroom.

"Titanic" Thompson En Route.

3 LANE HIGHWAYS SPEED TRAFFIC IN NEW YORK STATE

Fast Drivers Find Passing Other Cars Is Easy.

BY HAL FOUST.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]
New York, Nov. 17.—The state of New York is giving preference to a type of highway virtually unknown in Illinois. It consists of three lanes of pavement, the center lane reserved for approaching and passing slower cars.

THE TRIBUNE automobile was on this type of road much of the distance in a drive here from Buffalo, N. Y.

New York state, for its entire highway program, spent approximately $20,000,000 this year and is finishing $29 miles of pavement for the building season just ended. Illinois, with its standard of 20 feet of concrete except on the busiest routes, will have a 1929 record of approximately 800 miles of new pavement at a cost of about $20,000,000.

For 1930 the New York program calls for 850 miles at a cost of $52,000,000. Illinois next year, providing the legality of the gasoline tax is sustained, plans to have 1,250 miles at a cost of $45,000,000.

Old Asphalt Provides Center.
These three lane highways are the result of an economy scheme in re-constructing New York's old pavements. From six to nine feet of the old asphaltic crown is retained and nine feet of new concrete is laid on each side of the black material.

In light traffic the three lanes are an advantage to the fast driver, since New York motorists obey fairly well the posted instructions to remain on the outside concrete. It is easier to pass a machine than it is on Illinois twenty foot roads where the fast machine must swing into and out of the path of any oncoming vehicles.

Where the traffic is heavy the three lanes fail to give the safety and speed

CHICAGO RESIDENTS CONSTRUCTING HOMES AT FLORIDA RESORT

Miami Beach, Fla., Nov. 17.—[Special.]—Chicago contributed a half million dollars to the $7,000,000 summer building program at Miami Beach which has broken all recent records for the total of permits issued with two months in 1929 yet to be counted.

A half dozen residents of the mid-west metropolis have joined the permanent winter colony by erecting new homes and other Chicagoans who are veterans "sun hunters" have utilized the idle summer months to remodel their residences.

Among Chicagoans who have built or are building new homes or making other improvements are:
Fred S. Snite, Harold A. Clark, William Taradash, Mrs. I. Grace Day, Theodore Dickinson, William H. Weber, John Hertz, Albert Lasker, Fred F. Breit.

that is afforded by four lanes, such as exist and are planned for extension routes radiating from Chicago. On the tri-path roads cars going in opposite directions sometimes try to use the center lane for passing at the same time.

Drivers Are Trained.

In recognition of the inadequacy of the three lanes, the state is building some four lane roads in the vicinity of New York City. These four lane pavements hereabouts are used with greater efficiency than in the Chicago area. Here drivers, educated to the practice by the three lane roads, keep to the right, leaving the center lanes for passing. This results in the center lanes being reserved for fast drivers who are continuously passing slower machines.

New York's highways are improperly and inadequately posted with directional signs and warning markers compared to the Illinois system, and when compared to Ontario's, fall still lower in grade. For example, on approaching Albany from the west on U. S. route 20, there are three signs a few feet apart, one reading "Caution," another "Slow," and the other "Stop." They are located at an intersection. The time required to read all three notices puts a fast driver on the crossing at a dangerous speed. There are many intersections without any warning markers and without posters to designate the continuation of the through route.

The drive here from Kingston is over about a hundred miles of comfortable pavement down the Hudson valley through beautiful scenery with a historical and literary background. The "headless horseman" bridge is over a small stream in the Sleepy Hollow made famous by Washington Irving's story. There are memorial tablets in and around White Plains, where George Washington's troops met the red coats under Gen. Howe. A wide highway is blasted from the steep cliffs of Stern King mountain, affording a commanding view up and down the Hudson river.

The Tribune car rolled into New York City over the Bronx parkway, a boulevard speedway with grade separations that was built a few years ago in a park reconstructed from a valley that had been a dump area for decades. The route led into the congestion of Manhattan, but that's another story.

Nature Does This

Dandruff Does This

Dandruff and many other external scalp disorders cause baldness. The Thomas' successfully treat all forms of external scalp disorders which have caused baldness or hair loss.

Thomas Does This

By eliminating the specific scalp disorder which caused your hair loss and returning the scalp to a healthy condition, The Thomas' aid nature in restoring a natural growth of hair.

Do YOU Want to Have a GOOD HEAD OF HAIR

TWENTY or thirty years ago a man was helpless to prevent baldness. When his hair started thinning at the temples, crown, or frontal, he could do nothing but struggle futilely against the baldness producing germ with haphazard home remedies.

Today, modern science in the form of the growth-promoting Thomas' treatment makes it possible for almost every man to retain his hair throughout life, or to re-grow hair on the thin or bald spots. Thomas' treatment has replaced old-fashion hit and miss methods by modern scientific precision. Each case is carefully analyzed and treatment administered to meet the particular needs of the individual. For example, each of the various types of dandruff demands a specific treatment, as does alopecia areata (baldness in spots), and any other scalp disorder. Thomas' treatment meets ALL of these needs. It eradicates the baldness producing germ, ends dandruff, stops abnormal hairfall and actually re-grows hair!

EVANSTON OFFICE

Now Open at 708 Church Street

Consistent with their policy of making Thomas' treatment conveniently available to all persons, The Thomas' have opened a completely equipped scalp treatment office in Evanston, at 708 Church St., Suite 232, Church Street Building. Here a skilled Thomas' specialist will gladly examine your scalp free.

If you are gradually—almost unconsciously—slipping into the "bald-headed row" consult a Thomas' specialist at once. Do not waste your time and hair experimenting with home remedies which may merely spread the baldness producing germs over a wider surface.

Thomas' scalp treatment can benefit YOU, just as it is benefiting thousands of others. It can stop YOUR falling hair, end YOUR dandruff, and actually promote hair growth on YOUR scalp. The Thomas' will not accept you for treatment unless they feel reasonably sure that you will obtain satisfactory results. Call at the nearest Thomas' office today, where a skilled trichologist will gladly examine your hair and scalp without charge and frankly tell you what Thomas' treatment can do to help you retain or regain your hair. Remember—the examination is free at all times.

GREEN BAY IS VICTORIOUS OVER CARDINALS, 12-0

Verne Dillweg Scores Two Touchdowns.

starts from midfield and then capitalized after Blood intercepted a pass by Nevres and carried it back to the Cardinal 35 yard line.

Score by Strategy.
McCrory cut into the line for four yards and then Molenda passed to Dillweg for the Cardinal's 34 yard line. Verne making a brilliant diving catch. The Cards gave up five yards before two snafus and a pass, the first play of the fourth quarter, was incomplete. Then the strategy.

Blood and Molenda went back as if for a place kick. The ball came to Blood kneeling on the ground. Molenda charged the kick and blocked the charging linemen as Blood ran back. Then he pivoted and threw to the left corner of the end zone where Dillweg waited uncovered. It was perfectly timed. Molenda's place kick for the point after the touchdown was wide.

This trickery aroused the Cardinals for the moment, but after completing three first downs to reach the Packers' 34 yard line, they lost the drive, two plays losing three yards and the next, a pass, being intercepted.

The Packers had one more surprise for the Cards and Lowellen and McCrory engineered the deal. From a punt formation, Lowellen, standing on his own 18 yard line, passed to McCrory down center and just over the line of scrimmage. McCrory ran 60 yards to the Cardinal 13 yard line and was prevented from completing his journey only because Micky McDonalld eluded three Packer blockers to bring him down.

Green Bay didn't follow up the advantage, Blood losing 14 yards on the first play and the next, a pass, struck an ineligible receiver and the Cards took the ball.

Never spent the remaining minutes throwing passes. Charging linemen and alert Green Bay back field made his task hopeless.

ORANGE, O.; FRANKFORD, O.

Orange, N. J., Nov. 17.—(AP)—The Orange A. C. and Frankford Yellow Jackets played a scoreless tie in a National League football game today.

In the last quarter Felix McCormick, Orange back, attempted a field goal from the 29 yard line. The pass from center was bad, however, and the kick went low and outside.

MAROON ELEVEN STARTS DRILL FOR WASHINGTON

The Maroons turn their attention this week to preparing for another intercollegiate contest. The University of Washington eleven invades Stagg field on Saturday for the final game on the Maroon schedule.

The Old Man is confronted with the task of building up his reserve tackle line. Jonathan Pump, who has been starting in the forward wall all year, was injured in the Illinois encounter and may not be able to play on Saturday. He played at Dartmouth before entering Chicago, and his experience has made him an invaluable asset all season.

Ernest Van Nieu, Stagg's 200 pound half back, was battered considerably in the Illinois game, but will be in shape for Saturday.

ST. THOMAS AND ST. OLAF SEVER SPORT RELATION

St. Paul, Minn., Nov. 17.—(AP)—Athletic relations between St. Thomas college of St. Paul and St. Olaf college of Northfield, members of the Minnesota intercollegiate athletic conference, were definitely severed today. The break followed conferences last week after Dr. L. W. Roe, president of St. Olaf, had charged that St. Thomas players had been unusually rough in the football game with the Olafs at Northfield, Oct. 5. St. Thomas officials investigated and submitted to Dr. Roe a report denying the charges.

CAGE MEETING TOMORROW.

With the intention of closing most of its divisions, a meeting of the basketball division of the Church A. A. of Chicago has been called by Chairman H. R. McKeib for tomorrow night at 77 West Washington street.

Title Chances Gone, Purple Awaits Irish

Minus any further illusions regarding a Big Ten title, Northwestern starts preparations today for the Notre Dame game Saturday at Dyche stadium, a contest in which they have everything to win and nothing to lose as far as championships are concerned.

The Wildcats just weren't on their game against Indiana, a fact which may be blamed either to overconfidence or a natural slowing up after playing a series of hard games. The former cause certainly will not be present against the Irish while Coach Dick Hanley hopes to get his boys in the proper physical condition by Saturday.

A capacity crowd of 50,000 will witness the renewal of grid relations between the two teams. Every duet for the game was sold three weeks ago. The Wildcats and the Irish have not met on the football field since 1925, when the latter won a thrilling 6 to 0 engagement at Evanston. In fact, the last three encounters between the two teams have been close.

The 1925 game went to Coach Rockne's team, 13 to 10, and in 1924 the Four Horsemen won, 13 to 6. Northwestern's ability to rally against Notre Dame has become somewhat of a tradition and it is here that followers of the Wildcats visit their major hopes for victory Saturday. Notre Dame, unbeaten in seven starts, is a top heavy favorite to breeze through, but the comeback proclivities of the Purple may prove a stumbling block.

Defeat May Be Tonic.
Coach Hanley faces a big problem this week in restoring the morale of the team after the Indiana debacle. Should the Purple rise to the heights they gained against Wisconsin, Illinois, and Ohio State, they will prove tough foes. The severe jolt handed out by the Hoosiers may be just the tonic needed to make the Wildcats wild.

"We lacked viciousness in our tackling and blocking," was Hanley's criticism of the team against Indiana. "This week we plan to get back to fundamentals once again, in an effort to restore some of our former effectiveness."
Al Moore, regular right half back, sustained the only major casualty Saturday. A severe jolt in the midsection is believed to have loosened up several ribs. He will be unable to join his mates in practice for several days, and whether he will be available Saturday is problematical.

Rus Berghman, the willowy full back, will be the principal ace in the Wildcats' attack. He will be called upon for most of the kicking and passing, together with hugging the ball. He averaged 5.6 yards per carry against Indiana. In the games to date he has carried the ball 125 times for 324 yards, an average of 2.6 yards per effort.

On Bakter, sophomore half back, appeared effective during the time he performed in the Indiana game, gaining 20 yards in four attempts. He probably will get a chance to show what he can do against the Irish.

Detroit Triumphs Over Chicago Soccer Team, 2-1
Detroit, Mich., Nov. 17.—(Special.)—Holley Carburetors today defeated the Chicago Spartans team, 2 to 1, in the Inter-city Midwestern Soccer league bout. The visitors were saved from a shutout by a goal from a penalty kick in the last few seconds of play.

BOB BECKER'S GUN ROARS; FAT BUCK IS VENISON NOW

Carrying Deer to Camp Hardest Job.

BY BOB BECKER.

(Chicago Tribune Press Service.)
Lake George, Mich., Nov. 7.—The huntsman is over. No more smoked meats for dinner, because there is fresh venison in camp tonight. A nice fat buck, about four years old, dropped when our Mannlicher .256, the same gun that bagged two fine sheep on our Alaskan hunt, roared in the virgin timber west of this lake about nine o'clock this morning.

The 160 grain bullet performed as it should, so all is well around this frost-stricken cabin as we break camp and start for home. Inasmuch as the law allows only one buck, with horns three inches above the skull, our deer hunting is over for this season.

If Lady Luck had not smiled on us in a most genial manner the story might have been different, although we worked on this buck according to the most approved methods of deer hunting. The luck comes in the picture by virtue of the fact that there happened to be deer in a certain stand of big hemlocks which Ben, our woodsman companion, crashed like a full back smacking off tackle.

Leave Camp Early.
We left camp before sunup. It was cold that we stepped lively to keep warm when we left the highway and at back into the virgin timber. At the start, hunting looked like a hopeless job, because the freezing temperature had made the woods noisy. A deer can hear a fellow coming a quarter of a mile away, no matter how carefully one steps.

For more than three hours we worked westward, sometimes traveling through groves of beautiful birches and maples where a galloping deer would give us a good shot and then we would plunge into a cedar swamp, sliding and jumping over moss grown logs and through boughs with deer signs everywhere. At last we came to a lovely stand of giant hemlocks. Fresh signs of deer and bucks were evident.

Ben said he would circle to the left of the swamp, walk along the edge for a few hundred yards and then come straight through.

I picked out a ringside seat on a log at the right of the hemlocks and kept watch. So I perched on an old fallen giant of a tree and hoped that a buck would tear out of that deer rendevous.

Dear Dash Out of Timber.
In about five minutes Ben whistled.
Looking to the left, I saw the reason.
A sleek deer was breaking out of the dense timber on an easy gallop. My gun ready, we saw a second deer coming, taking the logs like a trained hurdler. It was a buck, and he was going to pass me at something like 75 yards. I swung ahead of this fellow until I could get a shot between two trees, and when he was on the spot the little gun roared. The buck staggered, but kept on.

Following, I came up for the second shot. But it wasn't necessary. Our quarry slowed down. He was through. He walked behind a stand of small balsams over to our right, and as we raced toward the spot we heard him crash.

It only takes a couple of seconds to upholster a buck, but making a C.O.D. delivery of the quarry at the main door is a hard and lengthy job.
After dressing out the deer, we had to cut a short cedar pole, strap him to it, and then, with Ben under one end of the pole and our right shoulder under the other the long trek for camp began.

We had grooves worn deep in both shoulders where that cedar pole with a couple of hundred pounds of meat hanging to it worked on us for more than three miles.

Ann Arbor, Mich., Nov. 17.—(Special.)—Michigan may think Michigan has had a bad football year, but if you drop in at Ann Arbor a different story will be heard, for Maize and Blue adherents think the season is anything but a failure.

Reading Minnesota Saturday to gain possession of "the little brown jug," coming on top of the fulfillment of the 48 year old dream of turning back Harvard, has made Wolverines and their followers happy.

horizon—that defeat at the hands of Michigan's most bitter rival, Illinois.
But if Coach Kipke's eleven can rise to the heights against Iowa Saturday, even that problem will be forgotten.

Forward Pass Key to Victory in Big Games

A successful season, defeating Wisconsin, Illinois and Ohio State, and losing to Minnesota and Indiana.

Illini Power Root Maroons.

The Maroons did well for part of the game, but were forced to yield to the balance and power of the Orange and Blue. Ohio State had a field day at the expense of Maroon, 54 to 0.

Detroit, defeated Michigan State, 25 to 0. The Dorals eleven has not been beaten but was tied by Marquette.

Coach Dorais has a powerful team with a strong running and forward pass attack. In Brazil, Detroit has one of the best backs in the country.

Marquette took an intercollegiate contest from Boston college, 20 to 6, while Missouri fell before New York University, 14 to 0.

Pittsburgh's decisive victory over Carnegie Tech, 34 to 13, stamps the Panthers as one of the strongest teams in the country. Pitt has crushed all opponents and never has been in danger of defeat all season. The team is rated the strongest in the history of the school.

Harvard Displays Power.

Yale, which has been tied by Maryland and defeated by Georgia, won from Princeton, 13 to 0. Dartmouth took a hard fought game from Cornell, 18 to 14, and Pennsylvania won from Columbia, 20 to 0. Harvard showed power by winning over Holy Cross, 12 to 6, and the strong Colgate eleven was victor over Syracuse, 21 to 0.

In the south, Vanderbilt was put out of the championship race by Tennessee, 13 to 0. Tulane won from Sewanee, 13 to 0. Tulane and Tennessee are recognized as the two strongest eleven in the south.

On the Pacific coast the defeat of Stanford by Santa Clara, 13 to 7, was a big surprise. Washington, which meets Chicago Saturday, forced California to extend itself to win by a 5 to 0 score.

AUTO OUTPUT IN CANADA SHOWS 16% INCREASE

Export Trade Plays Large Part in Production.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]
New York, Nov. 17.—The output of automobiles in the dominion of Canada for twelve months ended Aug. 30 was 16 per cent above production in the calendar year 1928, and more than 57 per cent above output in 1927. Production has dropped below the peak for this year, which was reached last April, but conditions still are described as "healthy."

In recent years, including those of 1928 and 1929, the average annual increase has been about 15 per cent. In other words, at this rate compounded it takes normally only five years for production to double, not a surprising rate of increase, when it is considered that the average life of a car is about seven years and that replacement alone accounts for a very high percentage of the demand.

In commenting on this growth, S. H. Logan, general manager of the Canadian Bank of Commerce, points out the important part which export trade plays in increasing the production. Last year 33 per cent of the cars manufactured in Canada were sold abroad, amounting in value to over $18,000,000 of this total, two-thirds went to other parts of the British empire, although nearly every country in the civilized world appears in the list of purchasers.

The scope of this important market, opened up through preferential tariffs, is readily understood by manufacturers and has served as an incentive to production in Canadian plants.

The Canadian branch moves alone

FINANCIAL NOTES

An issue of $3,000,000 city of New Orleans, La., 4½ per cent bonds, due serially Oct. 1, 1931, to 1939, is being offered by Halsey, Stuart & Co., the First National bank of New York, Bancamerica-Blair corporation, Old Colony corporation, R. W. Prossprich & Co., George B. Gibbons & Co. Inc., and Rogers Caldwell & Co. Inc. The bonds are offered at prices to yield from 4.90 per cent to 4.70 per cent, according to maturity.

Offering of the issue of $5,000,000 state of Louisiana 5 per cent highway bonds, maturing serially from 1930 to 1949, will be made today at prices to yield 4.70 to 5 per cent. The offering group will be composed of Lehman Bros., Stone & Webster and Blodgett, Inc., Kountze Brothers, and others.

Offering of a new issue of $1,945,000 territory of Hawaii 4½ per cent bonds, due 1934 to 1956, will be made today by a banking syndicate.

Provision has already been made for the retirement of over $15,000,000 of the $25,000,000 securities of the Hugo Stinnes organization which had been sold in this country, according to the annual report.

Public financing by the Glenn L. Martin company is expected shortly, and will probably take the form of convertible notes.

Lines very similar to those of the industry in the United States. Although its output is not comparable in amount, the annual rate of increase corresponds to a great extent with that of the larger country, and a speeding up or slackening in the American industry has its repercussion on that of Canada.

On the other hand, Canada's domestic and external market is of the greatest interest to the American manufacturer. Canada is not only the largest purchaser of American cars, but their most important foreign assembly point. Of a total of $500,000,000 worth of cars exported from the United States in 1928, $100,000,000 went to Canada, over $40,000,000 of this representing parts which entered into Canadian production.

SECRETARY HYDE APPROVES TRADE CODE OF PACKERS

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]
Washington, D. C., Nov. 17.—Trade practice rules unanimously adopted at a conference of meat packers and meat wholesalers in Chicago on Oct. 22 are now effective.

Letters approving the code and commending them for its adoption have been mailed to members of the conference by Secretary of Agriculture Hyde. To the appeal for strict compliance with the new rules, Secretary Hyde added a warning that violations will be followed by prosecution of packers subject to the packers and stockyards act.

Some of the practices complained of at the conference, in which at least 95 per cent of the industry was represented, were already subject to the packers and stockyards act, but the code adopted sought as well to correct wasteful or unethical methods through self-regulation by the meat trade itself.

He shut out the roar of the Street but he shut in a more deadly din

There has been a great awakening in American Business to the devastating cost of noise.

NOISE, as an enemy to business achievement. NOISE, as a cause of nervous breakdown and mental fatigue. NOISE, as a companion of office chaos and disorder.

Millions are being spent in office building construction to shut out the thunder of the street by insulating the office walls and ceilings. But in closing out the noisy distractions of the outside world, many business men are overlooking the vital importance of suppressing the inside noises. The noise manufactured right within the office itself!

The biggest factor in creating office noise is typewriter clatter. For the typewriter regulates the pitch of the office. If typewriters are noisy, loud talking is inevitable. Men must shout to make themselves heard.

The one complete and lasting remedy for typewriter clatter is the REMINGTON NOISELESS Typewriter. With one of these machines, your secretary can type your letters within whispering distance of your desk and you will scarcely be conscious of her presence.

No typewriter is truly noiseless except the REMINGTON. If you would prove that for yourself, let us send you a REMINGTON NOISELESS Typewriter (or a battery of them), for a free and thorough "try out" in your office. RESERVE BOARD TELLS PART IN CREDIT RELIEF Support Given N. Y. Banks in October.

Washington, D. C., Nov. 17.—(AP)—The part the federal reserve system and New York Federal Reserve bank took in extending credit to New York banks which took over brokers' loans of nonbanking lenders during the critical period in the stock market in October was explained today in the monthly federal reserve bulletin.

Combined figures of weekly reporting member banks in the leading cities, the bulletin said, showed an increase in total loans and investments of $1,600,000,000 from Oct. 2 to Oct. 26, nearly all of which occurred during the last week of the month and at banks in New York City.

Reserve balances higher. The taking over of this credit, the bulletin continued, was reflected in a growth in the last week in October of $1,600,000,000 in net demand deposits at the New York banks and of a consequent large growth of their reserve requirements which was indicated by an increase of $240,000,000 in their reserve balances with the federal reserve bank.

In coming to the support of the situation during this period of severe disturbance, the banks in New York City had the assistance of the federal reserve system, the bulletin added. "The Federal Reserve Bank of New York increased its discounts for member banks by $150,000,000 during the week and in addition purchased $150,000,000 of United States government securities in the open market. As a consequence of the action of the banks in New York City and of the Federal Reserve Bank of New York, the liquidation which took place in the security market was not associated with a rise in money rates."

Board's Loans Drop Reviewed. The board reviewed the decrease in brokers' loans during the latter part of October when a total reduction for the month of $2,400,000,000 in brokers' loans was reported by the New York stock exchange.

DEVELOPMENTS IN CREDIT SITUATION AID BOND MARKET

New York, Nov. 17.—(AP)—Favorable developments bearing on the underlying credit structure during the past week have strengthened the bond market's economic foundation.

The use of credit for speculative purposes has undergone a record decline. Brokers' loans have fallen with an unprecedented rapidity—$2,500,000,000 in the past three weeks. Time money is quoted below 6 per cent for the first time in about a year and a half, contrasting with 9 1/2 per cent at the height of the summer credit stringency. Call loans are down to 5 1/2 per cent against 10 and 12 per cent a comparatively short time ago. Bankers' acceptances are now at 4 1/4 per cent, whereas they had been as high as 5 1/2.

Normally, bond prices quickly respond to easier money rates by rising, but the stock market's losses were so large and the crash came so suddenly that fixed income securities were likewise depressed.

borrowings was reported by the New York stock exchange.

Loans to brokers by nonbanking lenders declined by $2,000,000,000 during October, reflecting withdrawals of funds from the call-loan market by foreign lenders, investment and trading companies and other corporations and individuals, the bulletin said. "Loans to brokers for out of town banks, which include a considerable amount of loans for the account of their customers, decreased by $800,000,000, while loans by New York City banks for their own account increased by $1,000,000,000."

Industrial activity, the bulletin said, while larger in August and September than a year ago, showed a decline for October as compared to a year ago, but only because the increases were not as large as those of 1928, which was a year of high production. Total production, the report continued, was 11 per cent larger for the first nine months of the year than for the corresponding period of 1928. The total output of automobiles in September was about the same as in the same month a year ago, the board said.

Wage Payments Continue Large. The volume of residential building contracts awarded in September declined, but public works and commercial and industrial building continued in large volume.

Notwithstanding the decline in the last 12 months," the bulletin said, "the volume of construction, as measured by contracts awarded, has remained at a high level compared with earlier years."

Chicago Trade Gains Despite Popular Fear

BY HOWARD J. CARSWELL.

Trade in the Chicago commodity markets showed a satisfactory improvement last week, despite the popular presumption that the stock market break would affect business, according to the weekly report on Chicago market conditions of the Association of Commerce.

Department stores catering to the wage earner and those of more expensive habits both reported sales ahead of the same period a year ago, while wholesalers found their turnover improving.

Demand for Jewelry.

Trade observers found one of Chicago's largest department stores which produced figures showing that early holiday purchases of jewelry have been making new records during the last eight weeks.

That a large aggregate of money which has been diverted to speculation will now find its way into business channels is the forecast of William H. Wilson, vice president of the American furniture mart, who anticipates a healthy business condition for 1930.

In commenting on the winter furniture market to be held here starting Jan. 6, Mr. Wilson said, "Judging from advance information on the January market prospects, manufacturers have not allowed the stock market events to retard their new designs. They apparently are watching style trends more closely than ever before."

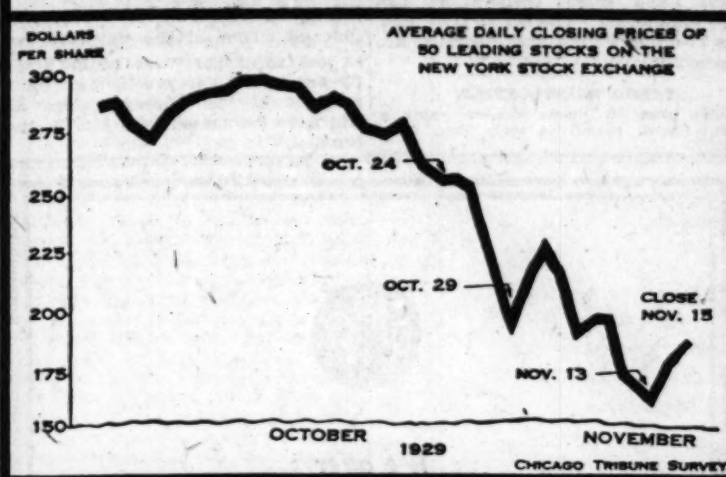

Holiday Trade Begins.

The holiday trade has not been seriously affected by the stock market reaction because many thousands have their Christmas savings funds for purchases, in the opinion of Roscoe R. Rau, managing director of the National Retail Furniture association. He finds a majority of customers for medium or cheaper merchandise are not showing any perceptible trend in their buying habits, due primarily to the fact that these people have not been involved in stock market activities.

Jewel Tea Co. Reports Increases in Sales

Sales of the Jewel Tea company for the four weeks ended Nov. 2 were $1,320,328, against $1,296,632 for the same period a year ago. For the first forty-four weeks of 1929 sales were $12,958,235, compared with $12,204,711 in like period of 1928.

GREAT WESTERN ROAD TO SPEED FREIGHT SERVICE

Speeding up of all freight service on the Chicago Great Western railroad by adoption of a complete new schedule Nov. 24 is announced by Oscar Townsend, vice president in charge of traffic.

Six new scheduled fast freight trains will provide more frequent and faster service between Chicago, St. Paul, Minneapolis, Omaha, and Kansas City and intermediate points. Connections will be made with all important through freight trains moving to the eastern and western seaboard, as well as between the north and south and the interior, Mr. Townsend said.

Chicago & North Western Stock Increase Is Assured

The Chicago and North Western railway has received sufficient proxies to assure approval of the plan to increase the authorized common stock from $200,000,000 to $300,000,000. Stockholders will meet today to vote on the plan.

Penny Stockholders Now Total 186,047 Persons

The number of stockholders of the Pennsylvania railroad has reached a new high record of 186,047. Forty-four per cent of them live in Pennsylvania, according to N. E. Newcomet, vice president of the road.

FIX VALUATION OF CHICAGO AND WESTERN INDIANA

Washington, D. C., Nov. 17.—(AP)—Final valuation on property of the Chicago and Western Indiana railroad, operating railroad terminals in Chicago, as of June, 1918, has been fixed today by the interstate commerce commission at $24,850,000 for that portion of its property engaged in rail operations under its own direction.

An additional figure of $33,094 was placed by the commission on property owned by the railroad but leased to other railroads in Chicago or not used for its own rail operations. The recorded book value of the corporation's holdings on the valuation date was $65,520,000.

In commenting on its finding the commission noted that the railroad's city property in the Dearborn area of Chicago and other locations was the principal item in controversy.

Hart-Carter Co. Declares Preference Stock Dividend

Directors of the Hart-Carter company have declared the regular quarterly dividend of 50 cents on the convertible preference stock, payable Dec. 1 to stockholders of record Nov. 15. In a letter to stockholders President Arthur J. Hartley states the earnings for the current year available for dividends are well in excess of three times the requirements on the preference stock.

Government Is Good Business Statistician

BY SCRUTATOR.

No matter what is thought of governmental interference in business affairs or the desirability of giving private enterprise the fullest possible latitude, it must be admitted that the gathering and interpretation of statistics is one function that can best be done under federal auspices.

We know that the interstate commerce commission has been given such power that the body is a constant source of irritation to the railroads and to the shipping public as well. The commission grew out of a necessity to curb predatory railroad men and to guarantee equality of economic opportunity to all businesses.

As an organization to prevent abuses and to furnish information on transportation it was a success—in the position of traffic manager for the United States its power may well be questioned.

The federal trade commission, which grew out of a similar necessity to keep big business from getting away with a bang and claw policy, has had a somewhat different history. Having cleared up some of the abuses that existed, it has adopted a rather benevolent attitude toward business. It has encouraged the trade association movement and is using the associations as helpers in the battle to eliminate bad practices.

Its Greatest Contribution.

Generally speaking, the trade commission uses every other means possible before instituting court action against corporations or individuals accused of unfair practices. It even seeks agreements with such offenders against business morality before issuing orders to them.

Its greatest contribution in late years, however, has been the collection and publication of information on various businesses. Its reviews of the oil industry, of cooperative marketing, of the trade association movement and others have been classics at least in the clarity and the completeness of treatment. As a consequence it is rare that any complaint is heard of its activities in business circles.

Others Not So Fortunate.

Other governmental departments have not been so fortunate. The bureau of labor statistics has been accused at times, perhaps unjustly, of propagandizing in its reports for pension systems. The department of agriculture, with the consent of all officials, busy selling the idea that farmers need education, money and organizing by government, as well as the voluminous and accurate statistics

SUNDAY IN WALL ST. IS QUIET AGAIN FOR FIRST TIME IN WEEKS

New York, Nov. 17.—Wall street presented its normal Sunday appearance today for the first time since the early part of October, when the break in the stock market was getting under way. Less than 10 per cent of the normal personnel was on duty in brokerage houses and, except at midday, the financial district seemed almost deserted.

In commission houses that are still behind with their bookkeeping staffs were on duty during part of the day, but the aggregate of Sunday workers was a mere handful, as compared with the number that Wall street has pressed into service on other Sundays since the upheaval began on the security exchanges. In the late morning and early afternoon, the financial district was visited by more than the ordinary number of sightseers, but there was nothing to remind them of the storms that have swept over the stock market in the last month.

Partners in some of the large commission houses paid brief visits to their offices and hastily ran over the orders that had accumulated over the week-end for execution tomorrow morning.

and making of new scientific facts that the department has developed.

In the commerce department the bureau of mines and the bureau of foreign and domestic commerce have the friendship of business men to a marked degree. The first furnishes accurate information on the country's mineral resources. The second is the best of sources for information on our foreign trade and is striving to do something of like value in the much more intricate field of domestic business. The last fiscal year, according to the annual report, the bureau of foreign and domestic commerce answered three million inquiries of business men, mainly on foreign trade.

Surveys Credit Practices.

It is now making a survey of credit practices in all retail lines, besides economic studies of industries, as a whole. The report states that it could obtain through business organizations a great deal of money for additional research if the law permitted. The only bit of propaganda in the document is an appeal for larger staffs to handle the many offices of the bureau.

The governmental agencies that are presenting facts and figures without attempting to influence business men, urban or rural, to specific courses of action—who are letting the public make its own decisions within the law—are deservedly popular.

WALL STREET IS BUSY JUNKING FALSE MYTHS

Tender Faiths Are Uprooted.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

New York, Nov. 17.—The events of last week proved—if there was any further need of proving it—that the American speculative public of today is quite as subject to waves of acute hysteria as it ever was in pre-war days.

The carefully cultivated myth of an "outside public" which understood the market, which had learned the inner secrets of financial valuation, is perhaps the most completely dispelled of any of the period's illusions.

The Wall street community itself, which had seemed a few months ago to have become obsessed with the popular notion that there could be no limit to the rise in prices, appeared for a time last week to be as deeply infected with the outsiders' hysterical imaginings. If it was believed last August or February that capitalists of unlimited wealth were buying all the stocks they could get at the top of the market, so it was apparently believed last week that the same multimillionaires were throwing over everything in their strong boxes at concessions of 25 per cent from the lowest prices of the October panic day.

Mob Psychology.

There is little profit in harping on these weaknesses of the speculative mentality, except as side lights on the fact that mob psychology may be as dominant an influence in creating markets during this new economic era as it was in 1873 or 1897, and that now, as then, action and reaction are equal in a speculative mania.

It is a chastened outside public and a chastened Wall street which have emerged from the experiences of the last three weeks. Both will see the truth of things clearly for a good while to come. We shall soon have entered a period of quiet and normal markets, in which the 15,000,000 shares of Oct. 23, and even last Wednesday's 7,700,000, will be among the reminiscences which old traders in Wall street

GRAIN OUTLOOK BEST IN MONTHS; PRICES RECOVER

Wheat Market Makes Strong Comeback.

BY CHARLES MICHAELS.
All indications are that the grain markets, particularly wheat, present more constructive factors than at any time in months.

The break in stocks was largely responsible for a few days of hysteria in grain, which was recovered in the closing days, with a rally of 10 to 15 cents in wheat prices after a decline of 15% to 15% cents from the high of the previous week.

At the last prices were the highest of the week, with net gains of 1% to 1 1/2 cents. Corn, after a break, finished 1/2 to 1/4 cents higher, while oats and rye, although closing around the best prices, ended with oats 1/4 to 1/2 cents lower, and rye off 1/4 to 1/2 cents under the previous week's finish.

Stages Comeback.
The wheat market has shown a decided comeback which has brought it more friends. Foreigners, who for months have used every depressing factor available, have evidently reached their limit, and late cables suggest they have been convinced that with shorter supplies from Argentina and Australia and other exporting countries, North America is to be mainly relied upon for supplies from now on.

Argentine and Australian crops have the promise of the shortest yields in recent years and the whole world situation has suddenly switched around so that traders see that they apparently have overestimated their market. Home grown native supplies have been consumed, and while France and Germany are well provided with wheat, imports from Europe, on the whole, will have to buy liberally from the United States and Canada to make up the deficit in the southern hemisphere countries. Should there be another hectic decline in stocks, and wheat follow, it is expected that foreigners will continue to come in, as they did during the last week, and buy freely around present levels. Their purchases of cash wheat last week, as well as those by domestic millers, were large, and were actual quantities bought by foreigners announced it might startle the trade.

Farm Board a Factor.
Developments in the farm board operations are taken as indicating they are planning stabilizing methods, particularly in the construction of elevators, which will ultimately be a factor, and other important moves are said to be under way.

The depressing influence of large stocks, particularly at the Gulf and in the "show windows," are said to be losing their effect. Gulf stocks have been reduced and there is said to be little wheat headed in that direction. In a stabilizing effort the department of agriculture's bullish announcement at the close, increasing the world's shortage in production 30,000,000 bu and estimated that world's supplies are short 350,000,000 bu from last year, helped to advance prices. Along with this report was the assertion that present conditions warranted an advance of 15 cents. There are many who do not agree with governmental price predictions, but the latter have their effect, for the time being at least.

After a continuous increase in the visible supply since July 1, the turning point has come and fair reductions from now on are predicted by the bulls.

Foreigners, in holding off purchasing American wheat, have allowed supplies on ocean passage to fall below a month's requirement and show weakness and are taking supplies on all breaks.

Despite the drastic decline early, all was recovered and the close was around the best prices for the week at a net gain of 1% to 1 1/2%. December closed at $1.21@1.22; March, $1.25@1.27; May, $1.11@1.12 1/2. Prices for the week follow:

Corn Gains Friends.
Corn had more friends at the close of the week than at the opening, with losses of 1/4 to 1/2 cents from the previous week's high recovered and net gains established of 1/4 to 1/2 cents. A combination of bearish government report, the break in wheat and stocks, and liquidating sales caused the depression.

A recovery was due to a better feeling all around, coupled with unfavorable weather in parts of the corn belt, light country offerings, and improved cash demand. The market was fairly evened up at the close.

December corn closed at 29 1/2 @ 30 1/2 c.

CURB MARKET STOCKS POINT UPWARD AFTER DRASTIC DECLINES

New York, Nov. 17.—(AP)—Stocks on the curb market turned upward in the final two trading sessions last week after another drastic decline carrying more than 200 issues down 2 to 100 points to the lowest levels of the year, or lower.

With the vigorous return on the "big board" beginning on Thursday, however, a broad upward movement set in on the curb, which in general canceled from one-half to three-quarters of the losses earlier in the week.

Although the market was again on a three hour daily trading schedule, and closed on Saturday, trading was again in overpervading volume and governors of the exchange followed the action of the stock exchange in curtailing the trading periods to the same schedule next week.

The rally was promoted by convincing evidence that the administration in Washington, leading bankers and exchange officials had determined upon lines of action to stabilize the financial situation. The curb, as did the stock exchange, requested information from members which would disclose the extent and identity of professional bearish operations.

March 84 1/2 @ 84 3/4, May 85 1/2 @ 85 3/4.

Cash were said to be well liquidated on the early break, but while closing around the top prices, were 1/4 to 1/2 net lower than the previous week. There is said to be nothing in the situation to induce heavy speculative buying, but with an overvalued condition on the decline, they were helped to rally by other grains.

FOREIGNERS BUY LARD
Foreigners were credited with buying millions of pounds of cash lard during the week from Chicago packers, who in turn bought December that was sold by third hands. Prices dropped to the lowest for December delivery since July, 1922, with a fair rally largely in sympathy with grains.

Faith in "Outside Public" Goes by the Boards.

will impart to the younger generation.

There is still left to be discovered the sequel in the country's general decline. Whatever happens in that direction, it cannot happen exactly in the way it did on older occasions of the kind. Whether or not a period of trade reaction is ahead of us, we are at any rate already able to say that there has been no shutting down of business houses, no crash on prices of manufactured products, no sweeping reduction of working forces, such as occurred in immediate sequence to nearly all of the older Wall Street panics.

Sees Different Situation.
The reason why no such spectacle presents itself today is perfectly evident. Speculation by merchants, artificial jacking up of prices, accumulation of inventories for an imagined much higher market, have been virtually nonexistent in 1929. They were a primary source of trouble in the older crises.

It is still possible, however, to be overconfident in drawing inferences. There is a good deal yet to be determined, in relation not so much to the character of production and sale of goods as to the character of consumers' buying. Even the trade journals, which usually take a hopeful view on such occasions, have admitted unreservedly that "luxury trades," whose output had been immensely stimulated by lavish expenditure of paper profits won on the stock exchange, may have to face a dismal Christmas.

Beyond this obvious consideration, however, the installment buying system, practiced as it notoriously has been on a scale never heretofore imagined, is bound at least to get a test. The two or three billion dollars of "installment paper" lately outstanding was possibly not so characteristic a sign of the times as this year's $2,200,000 outpour of new investment trust securities and the $3,000,000 increase in brokers' loans, but it was at least an abnormally rapid expansion in consumers' use of credit and its manner of expansion embodied an industrial experiment.

These tests of the business situation will presumably be applied in an orderly way. The Iron Age very sensibly points out that, whatever may be said of the new era in industry, to the extent at least that mass production depends on mass demand and the sources of mass demand must be protected.

DAMAGE DONE BY UPHEAVAL IS YET UNKNOWN

Find Conservative Trend in Trade Circles.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

New York, Nov. 17.—A considerable degree of conservatism is evident in business generally, as was to be expected at the conclusion of such an upheaval as has developed in the stock markets of the country, but it is yet far too early accurately to measure the damage which will be ultimately sustained by business which may be traced directly to the decline of stocks.

Now that the excitement has subsided, however, and order has been brought out of market chaos, many constructive developments are coming to the fore which probably will have an invigorating effect on business.

Hoover Proposal.

Among these may be outlined the statement of President Hoover and the constructive campaign that will be outlined next week at the conference of industrial and financial leaders in Washington, another was the reduction of the New York reserve discount rate, while still another was the definite evidence of easy money which developed at the end of the week, indicating a free flow of funds, formerly employed in the stock market, back to useful commercial channels.

It is an emphasized feature of the present situation that with the exception of the now well deflated securities markets, there has been no inflation this year. This is particularly true of the commodities. In practically every line of industry production has been synchronized closely to consumption, and the slowing down or the speeding up of the pace of production is a comparatively simple matter. That there may be some further recession between this time and the first of the year, is deemed entirely likely. In the first place, it is not the season of the year of heavy manufacturing operations. Then, too, in many lines, producers will need a month or so to gauge their nearby and 1930 requirements.

Steel and Iron Steady.

Iron and steel production, although moderately lower last week, as compared with the previous one, shows considerable stability because of fresh buying which has developed from the railroads, mainly for steel rails.

Structural steel, too, was in good demand. Operations in the mills generally are down to about 60 per cent in the valley districts with Chicago and Pittsburgh operations at 75 per cent of capacity.

Automobile production is at a slow pace, a condition expected to be alleviated after the turn of the year by the introduction of new models. The Ford Motor company is reported to have placed orders for considerable amounts of materials last week.

Last week was notable for the number of extra and initial dividends declared by well known corporations. Some of these dividend disbursements were made obviously to bolster commercial sentiment, but they are made possible by the accumulated business of one of the most active years in the country's industrial history. Corporation reports generally for the year 1929 will show profits averaging about 20 per cent ahead of 1928, despite disappointments which have developed in the final quarter of the year.

COKE PRODUCTION.

With a production of 3,940,864 tons, Illinois ranked sixth in 1928 in the production of by-product coke.

Utah Radio Products.

J. S. M.: Utah Radio Products company was incorporated Aug. 1, 1928, with 125,000 authorized shares of no par capital stock, to manufacture and sell radio units. In February, 1929, a 100 per cent stock dividend was paid.

This company acquired the net assets and business of Utah Radio Products company of Salt Lake City, Utah, and certain assets of Henry C. Forster & Co., Chicago.

Net income for the eleven months ended June 30, 1929, was $617,053, which was equivalent to $2.47 per share on 249,900 no par shares.

As of June 30, 1929, surplus was $162,668. Current assets were $1,259,327 and current liabilities were $244,221.

An initial quarterly dividend of 30 cents a share was declared payable Nov. 1, 1928, thus placing the stock on a $1.20 annual basis.

Stockholders on Oct. 28, 1929, voted to increase the capital stock from 250,000 shares to 1,000,000 shares. They also approved the acquisition of H. H. Eby Manufacturing company of Philadelphia. Company of Chicago, and Caswell-Rumsey company of Huntington, Ind.

It was announced Oct. 31, 1929, that the new radio parts and accessories organization formed by a merger of the company and other manufacturers had acquired Fabroc Insulation company of Valparaiso, Ind., through an exchange of stock.

The stock is of medium grade and speculative.

Indian Motorcycle.

L. B. M.: Indian Motorcycle company in September, 1929, instituted a new program which called for giving up experimental lines and charging off losses resulting from those activities.

The new management will concentrate on the company's original business of motorcycles and on closely allied lines, especially outboard motors.

For the first six months of 1929 the company reported a net loss of $278,201, against a net income of $105,643 in the like period of 1928.

At the close of June, 1929, current assets were $1,794,116 and current liabilities were $908,275. Surplus was $135,605.

The quarterly dividend due on the preferred stock in October, 1929, was passed. The last previous dividend was paid July 1, 1929. No dividends have been reported on the no par common since July 1, 1928.

The preferred stock is speculative, and the common is purely speculative.

Argentine Republic.

P. V. K.: Argentine Republic external 6 per cent loan of 1923 series A bonds due Sept. 1, 1957, are a direct obligation of the Argentine government, which agrees that in the event of issuing bonds in the future with any specific guarantee the bonds of this issue will be secured equally and ratably with such bonds.

These bonds are listed on the New York Stock exchange.

They are a sound investment.

COKE PRODUCTION.

With a production of 3,940,864 tons, Illinois ranked sixth in 1928 in the production of by-product coke.

STEEL INDUSTRY IS STILL AHEAD OF OTHER YEARS

Railroad Buying Is Most Important Factor.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

New York, Nov. 17.—With railroad buying and orders for structural steel shapes being the only heavy transactions that are occupying this period in the iron and steel industry, the slackness in other lines, which has been noted by decreasing orders, is beginning to be regarded in its true light by executives of the larger companies.

Despite the decreases in practically all other steel and iron lines, aside from the two mentioned, it is pointed out that business is still above the average for the first weeks of the last quarter in previous years, and that the rate of decline looks bad only when compared with the record breaking previous months of this year.

Pig iron production figures for October are selected as being the best illustration of the fact that business is bad only in comparison to other months of 1928. The daily average production of pig iron for October was the lowest of any month this year with the exception of February, but it was the highest October on record in the industry. The daily rate for the month was 115,747 tons, which was about 800 tons below the daily average for September of this year, but nearly 7,000 tons above the daily average for October of 1928.

Production of the first ten months of the year was 36,250,846, which is greater by more than 5,000,000 tons for the corresponding period of 1928, and within 1,600,000 tons of the production for the entire year of 1928.

SAYS CONDITION OF AMER. GAS & ELEC. IS SOUND

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]
New York, Nov. 17.—George N. Tidd, president of the American Gas and Electric company, has addressed to stockholders a letter assuring the fundamental soundness of the company's securities. Total assets as of Sept. 30 were more than $400,000,000, Mr. Tidd said, and the available surplus as of that date was $39,393,634.

The assets included $15,000,000 in cash and call loans, $60,000,000 in bonds and preferred stocks, readily salable, and physical property against which securities can be issued amounting to $40,000,000.

Mr. Tidd advises stockholders not to be alarmed as to their stocks because of the "unprecedented panic and hysteria" in Wall street, adding that "there is nothing in the situation so far as your company is concerned which may occasion any alarm."

Our earnings are increasing. We have contracts for large amounts of new business coming into our system. Our relations with our customers are of the very best."

30 Million Families Go On

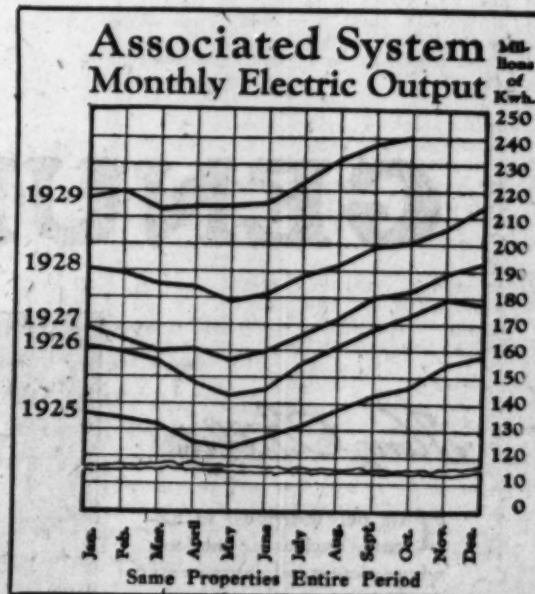

THE 30 million families in the United States continue to eat, dress and live. They continue to buy, consume and advance.

They continue to do so because they continue to work, earn and spend as much if not more, than ever before.

Employment in the country as a whole is normal. People are earning. Buying power is high. Business is sound. Earnings are ample for dividend and interest obligations. In fact, many companies are currently announcing increases in dividends.

People are using more electricity and gas, more telephones, more automobiles—more of nearly everything than ever before. The utility industry is exceeding all past records.

The largest gas and electric output for any October in the history of the Associated System has just been reported, with no retardation in sight.

STORY.

Tom Davies, football star of a small eastern college, plays brilliantly in his last game. After the battle Bruce Stevens, his roommate, asks him to go to the dance that night to meet a girl who has been asked down to the college for him. Bruce explains that he is not going to the dance, but that he is going to the college to see his father. After the game, Tom goes to the dance and meets a girl who is very beautiful. He is very attracted to her and goes to her room. He is very happy and goes to bed. The next morning, he goes to the college and sees his father. He is very surprised to see him and goes to his room. He is very happy and goes to bed. The next morning, he goes to the college and sees his father. He is very surprised to see him and goes to his room. He is very happy and goes to bed.

INSTALLMENT XIII.
AN UNCOMFORTABLE SUSPICION.

Suzanne's voice, rather than her words, annoyed Tom. "Bruce is going to be here tomorrow, isn't he?" she asked presently, mingling her words with a kind of vicious snap.

"Yes."

"While you're away, I mean."

"Yes."

"Well, I can take him sailing, perhaps. I can get a boat at Dolan's."

"He'd like that. He was born up in Maine on the coast, and he likes sailing."

"Thank you for telling me," said Suzanne with sudden sweetness. Then she got into bed, and turned her face to the wall, once more. It was only six miles to Dolan's boat house. A few wretched sloops in need of paint could be had for hire here, and Bruce made the only possible selection.

Suzanne's suggestion had fallen into welcome ears, for he loved the water and all its things passionately. He thought his friend's wife delightful. Her quick, eager laugh, her unerring sense of a masculine mood, her desire to please—these things charmed him.

After Tom had left she had put together a picnic lunch. She had thought to pack in a wire grill.

He would have suspected nothing if she hadn't stayed where she was, the split part of a second too long.

"We'll stop at the butcher's and get some chops," she said. "It might be in his hand somewhere and cook 'em lunch."

"Do you like camping?"

"I love it."

"You ought to see my island."

"Your island?"

"It's the only property I have. It's on the coast of Maine. There's a lot of cabin on it, or was. I used to keep 'em sorts of things there. A great place!"

They drove off in the big car and got their boat. Bruce was happy when he had a tiger under his fingers. His sophisticated air dropped away, and he was as serious and intent as a boy.

The wind, which was light, puffed the sail lazily. Bruce lay back in the stern. He had on a pair of duck trousers belonging to Tom, and an old sweater. Suzanne was all in white, too. She had a look, he thought, of a woman, like something that has just been turned out by a machine. Her olive skin seemed to absorb the golden hues of the sunlight. He noticed the head depth of her eyes, and her brown curls. How impossibly pretty she was! It was a new experience for him: to find himself like this, quite alone, with a good looking girl, and not to find himself in pursuit. He contemplated himself on his sense of honor.

They sailed across the bay, tacking back and forth. It was 1 o'clock when they knew it. A sandbar with some scrub trees upon it seemed a good place to land. Bruce hove to and dropped anchor. He rowed Suzanne ashore in a tiny dinghy that sank under their weight to the gunwale's edge.

Bruce gathered wood, and Suzanne spread the things out and cooked chops and coffee over the coals. Smoke blew into their faces, and sand sprinkled the butter, but Bruce had never had a better appetite. He wolfed his food and came back for more.

Suzanne, with an enormous sandwich in her hand, danced while she ate, and he watched her and approved.

"By the way," she said, "the water's like ice, but I brought my bathing suit and one of Tom's. Are you game?"

"Yes, if you'll wait. If I jumped in now I'd sink like a stone."

He drank a final cup of coffee, lighted a cigaret, and sat, cross legged, in the sunlight looking out at the boat that rocked idly on the ruffled water. He was aware of his profound physical contentment.

Turning his gaze, he saw that Suzanne's eyes were resting upon him with a rather personal expression.

"You don't really want to marry any one, do you?" she asked abruptly.

He puffed in the cigaret smoke, and pondered.

"Not yet."

"Haven't you ever been in love?"

"I've never been out of it."

"And yet you've never met any one you care to—to marry? I suppose the real reason is you've never liked any girl enough to take her seriously."

"No," he contradicted her. "I've never found any girl who was willing to take me seriously."

"Don't be clever."

"What shall I be?"

"Be what you're really like. With me, anyway."

"That," said Bruce, "would take some finding out." He yawned cheerfully, and patted his stomach. "The swelling is going down. How about that, swim?"

When she came out of the bushes he looked at her and looked away and looked again. She had an almost perfect figure, with slim, long legs and a small waist.

They ran into the water together, first making a compact to do so and smiling in with hands interlocked. It was shivery stuff. But presently Suzanne shouted in a bubbly voice:

"O, it's wonderful. It's simply gr-r-real! Come on out farther, you seaweed!"

He caught up to her, and she splashed him, and the water went into his eyes, and she laughed and struggled as he swam after her. But when he had reached her, he did not try to duck her, but turned on his back and floated, looking up at the quiet sky.

It had occurred to him she was a friendly little thing, but a trifle inexperienced, a little too innocent, perhaps.

They did not stay in long, but their skins glowed from the plunge when they had put their clothes on and rowed out to the sloop.

The wind was coming up out of the south—a warm, full wind. Bruce had tried to teach her how to sail. She volunteered now to help. The sail was up, the anchor weighed. He dashed back to the tiller, took it from her hands.

"Duck!" he shouted.

She did not seem to hear. The boom, swinging slowly around, pushed her unceremoniously and she fell into his arms.

It was the most natural thing in the world. He would have suspected nothing if she hadn't stayed where she was, the split part of a second too long.

Though she got on her feet laughing and moved away, an uncomfortable suspicion came over him: his suspicion hardened into certainty.

With a little effort. His suspicion hardened into certainty.

Good morning!

The excellent comedy contributed by Moore, Cawthorn and Conti and the Irish winsomeness of Sally O'Neill save this film from the "just another movie" rating.

The aforementioned gentlemen are seen as Potash and Permuter-ish partners in a song publishing business. Both are interested in their cute song demonstrator (Miss O'Neill) who loves only a sweet-voiced Mr. Holmes who has nothing to offer her, but a melody on which he is working and one party-on-the-blink piano that is completely as before the story's told.

Clyde Cook as a landlady's husband by day and a night watchman—by night—does all that could be done with his role. John Mack Brown is nice and sweet as the scenario calls upon him to be and has an alluring southern air. But Joseph Cawthorn and Albert Conti—especially the former—bring to "Jazz Heaven" its only aroma of distinction.

"SEÑOR AMERICANO."

KIND: Just another "western" in which the heroine and her dad are in difficulties over their Spanish land grant, and the grand young Americano performs wonders in their behalf.

QUALITY: Mediocre.

SCENERY: Pleasant.

PHOTOGRAPHY: Good.

DIRECTION: Not so good.

ACTING: The best performance is given by one Frank Vassallo, who, as the caballero Man Friday of the hero, contributes a colorful and believable character. Kathryn Crawford is pleasing enough as the heroine. Ken Maynard's white horse, Tarsan, proves in excellent form. All other players, Mr. Maynard included, act like amateurs and talk as if they were saying pieces at the last day of school.

REMARKS: The film features much singing and banjo strumming and is long on action—such as it is. The Rialto is showing a silent version. See you tomorrow.

The Inquiring Reporter
Every Day He Asks Five Persons, Picked at Random, a Question.

The Tribune will pay $5 for each question accepted for the Inquiring Reporter to ask. Send your name and address with your question to "Inquiring Reporter," Chicago Tribune, For today's question Mrs. Alpha Sheldon, 2608 North Meade avenue, was awarded $5.

The Question.

Do you believe in newlyweds living with relatives?

The Answers.

V. C. Webb, 5745 South Sangamon avenue, lecturer—I do not.

From the earliest history of mankind it has been said that when man marries he shall leave his father and his mother and cleave unto his wife.

What is true of the man is equally true of the woman. Possibly more divorces are caused by in-laws than by out-laws.

Mrs. Elizabeth L. Hagerty, 2346 Le Moine avenue, housewife—No. But if the girl must live with relatives it had better be with her own people, never with her husband's mother. No matter if they get along together and make the best of it, the one or the other will suffer.

S. H. Sternfeld, 4687 North Avera avenue, contractor—I do not. In every household differences of opinion come up which easily are forgotten if nobody intervenes. But all disagreements, however slight, are embarrassing in the presence of relatives.

Miss Ruth Ford, 451 Wrightwood avenue, dancer—I should say no, emphatically. Indications generally are that it is bad enough living together without having relatives within hearing distance. Relatives invariably have an inextinguishable supply of ideas and they are generous with them. Were I to marry I would not choose to live either with my family or theirs.

J. K. Phillips, 332 South Michigan avenue, real estate—I have decided opinions on that. It is always best for any newly married couple to start out independent of others. There is some psychological relation between mothers-in-law and sons-in-law, something like jealousy, though I have never been able quite to fathom it.

Describing a shooting incident, Mr. Graves writes:

"Two young miners reported to the adjutant that they had shot their company sergeant major."

"Good heavens! How did that happen?" asked the adjutant. The men answered, "It was an accident. We mistook him for our platoon sergeant, who had been hazing us."

So they were both shot against the convent wall at Bethune, and the French military governor, according to Mr. Graves, made a little speech saying how gloriously British soldiers can die.

"Executions were frequent in France," the author writes. "My first direct experience of official lying was when at Havre I read twenty reports of men shot for cowardice or desertion, yet not a week later a responsible minister in the house of commons, answering a question from a pacifist member, denied that a sentence of death for a military offense had been carried out on any member of his majesty's forces."

Speaking of the Prince of Wales, when he met in the baths at Bethune, the author says:

"I heard him complaining indignantly that Gen. French—the late earl of Ypres—had refused to let him go into the line."

Publishes Even Hotter Book on World War.

[Copyright: 1929: By the New York Times.]

LONDON, Nov. 17. — Erich Maria Remarque's "All Quiet on the Western Front" will be challenged tomorrow as the outstanding narrative of the war by the publication of "Good-bye to All That."

The author is Robert Graves, poet, who served as an officer with the Royal Welsh Fusiliers, and with fearless candor he describes the "slow, horrible, physical and mental deterioration of the men of all ranks," as he put it.

He freely mentions personages great and small by name, and appears constantly to be straining at the limitations imposed by the law of libel. He tells of drunken officers, suicides, unrecognition heroism, and of two young soldiers shooting their company sergeant major [equivalent to American first sergeants].

THEIR PROGRAM WAS THE USUAL VARIETY OF MOTETS, MADRIGALS AND BALLET.

At the Playhouse another fine example of unison performance was that of the English Singers, that unfired six who simply sat at a table and sang as one. A popular song they became in Chicago that the mere mention of their coming is enough to fill the theater. Reviving a fine art of Elizabethan days, that of part singing, they do so with a perfection that is surprisingly simple. That is, it sounds simple. But the accuracy of pitch, of attack, and the flexibility of these six is a distinct lesson in singing.

I later learned she was just 3—this little stranger who asked away, so frightened, from my large, furry dog. Hoping to show her just how gentle and friendly he was, I said, "He won't hurt you, honey; he plays with pussies."

But she moved away still further and said in defense, "But I isn't a pussy."

BRITISH PLAN TO USE U. S. IDEA OF RADIO BROADCAST

Present State Monopoly May Be Abolished.

BY JOHN STEELE.
(Chicago Tribune Press Service.)
LONDON, Nov. 17.—As a result of the severe criticism which British radio programs have received lately, the British Broadcasting corporation, which enjoys a monopoly of English broadcasting rights, is contemplating abandonment of the European system deriving payment for wireless service through the license fees paid by all listeners and inauguration of the American method of making advertising out of the bills.

As present listeners pay $2.50 for a license, unlicensed listening in being an offense against the law. The post-office collects the license fee, taking in more than $6,000,000 in 1927, of which the broadcasting corporation got approximately $4,000,000. Last year the corporation's share was $4,333,000.

More Than Double Revenue.
The shift to the American plan envisages selling 75 per cent of the total air hours at rates ranging from $250 to $500 per hour. This will produce a revenue of nearly $15,000,000. The remaining 25 per cent will be retained by the corporation for broadcasting news, religious services, lectures, weather reports, and official announcements.

An improvement in programs is expected as a result of this change, because advertisers will be able to pay higher prices than the broadcasting corporation, which ordinarily has to be content with second rate talent.

Monopoly Disappears Labor.
One reason for the company's anxiety to make the change may be that the Labor party is in opposition to monopolies, coupled with the fact that Mrs. Plump Knower, wife of the chancellor of the exchequer, who is one of the corporation's governors, feels that there is a need for improvement of the programs. The corporation, therefore, is taking steps itself to avert possibly more drastic action on the part of the government.

Under the new plan the corporation would retain control of censorship powers, but facilities would be granted commercial concerns for provision of programs on a competitive basis.

Robert D. Klees to Be Buried at Baltimore, Md.
Funeral services for Robert D. Klees, managing director of the Union League Foundation for Boys' Club, will be held at his residence at 630 Washington boulevard, Oak Park, at 2:30 o'clock this morning. The body will be in state at the Union League Boys' club at 19th and Leavitt streets from 11 to 12 o'clock, and will be taken to Baltimore, Md., this afternoon for burial. Pall bearers will be boys from the club. Mr. Klees is survived by his widow and one daughter, Ruth.

Percival Frowert, Noted in Advertising, Found Dead
New York, Nov. 17.—[Special.]—Percival K. Frowert, head of the advertising firm of his name, was found dead in bed by his chauffeur. The police report death due to natural causes, presumably heart disease, from which Mr. Frowert had been suffering. He was 50 years old.

Elmer Doffs Hat to Golden Voiced Tenor
Hour Program None Too Long for Martinelli.

BY ELMER DOUGLASS.
Mention the name of Giovanni Martinelli and audiences are at attention. Mr. Martinelli was the soloist on the New York program through W-G-N, 8:15 to 9:35, and capped the climax of yesterday's long and important musical day. This golden voiced tenor is a master of the singer's art, as was evident throughout his rather lengthy program of operatic arias and song groups. His voice and personality dominate on the air as the operatic stage. With this singer, whether the loudspeaker is turned down low or whether it is allowed to roar in crashing tones, the result is strangely and invariably pleasing.

As though in anticipation of a great radio day, Conductor Frederick Stock chose Tchaikovsky's Fourth symphony as the major work for the Chicago Symphony concert through W-G-N, 2 to 3 o'clock. And he gave a great performance of it, and revealing many inner beauties and effects that added much to its impressiveness. Fitly, Macdowell's "To a Wild Rose" and "To a Water Lily," both in Mr. Stock's own arrangement, were played after the completion of the symphony. To fill in the remaining few minutes Mr. Stock wisely chose to repeat the fascinating Pizzicato section of the same Tchaikovsky Fourth symphony.

Mrs. Ernestine Schumann-Heink, the great contralto of this and the east generation, was the soloist on special broadcast from New York through W-G-N, 10:15 to 10:45. She was in excellent voice.

Last evening's W-G-N 7:45 to 8:15 Chicagoand program, narration by Quin Ryan and music by the W-G-N Symphony orchestra, was impressive. The historical period depicted was that of Abraham Lincoln preceding the civil war.

Dvorak's "New World" symphony was admirably played on the theater concert from New York through KTYW, 1 to 2 o'clock program.

Quaint and charming is the present series of programs of old-time music by the Old World Trio and additional numbers and solos on ancient musical instruments from New York through WLS, 1:30 to 2 o'clock.

4 LOST AS FRENCH PLANECRASHES AT SEA; FIND WRECK
MARSEILLES, France, Nov. 17.—(P)—Finding of airplane wreckage off Corsica today was believed to indicate that four persons had met death. The wreckage was identified as that of the regular mail plane on the Marseilles-Tunis route which left here at 10 a. m. yesterday for Tunis. A radio SOS was heard an hour later, followed by silence.

The plane carried a pilot, mechanic, radio operator, and one passenger. This was the third plane to be wrecked in the Mediterranean within ten days. The passengers on the other two were rescued off the Balearic islands, although one of the parties had spent an entire night in tossing on the high seas in the seaplane.

The law substituting Sunday for Friday will come before the parliament at Ankara within the next few days. Meanwhile the official press has been paying the way with the argument that Turkey cannot afford to lose two business days weekly at a time when the nation is bending every effort to follow up political victories with economic triumphs.

In order to placate citizens who are religiously inclined, but lack economic interests, the law probably will change the Turkish name Sunday, "Pazar," to "Duma," meaning Friday.

The regular milk drinkers of today will be the "regular" grown-up boys and girls of tomorrow—the ones that make the football team, that lead in studies and "get somewhere" in life.

Not to drink sufficient milk puts a severe handicap on the development of any child. Many parents have made milk drinking most inviting by serving "Selected." Its "Sweet Natural Taste" has won thousands of young and old to the regular practice of milk drinking.

"Selected" is a special milk for drinking. It owes its "Sweet Natural Taste" to the special vigilance and care taken in its production on 105 picked dairy farms near Lake Geneva, Wisconsin. We pay a liberal premium to the farmers for producing "Selected" under our rigid regulations covering feeding, stabling, milking, handling.

You'll instantly recognize the difference when you taste "Selected." Try it on your boy or girl who doesn't drink enough milk. Arrange today for a trial. Three easy methods are suggested below.

TEROY BINKLEY TO MAKE SUNDAY MOSLEM SABBATH
CONSTANTINOPLE, Nov. 17.—(P)—Leaders of the new Turkey have determined to start observance of the Sabbath on the Christian Sunday instead of on Friday, thus severing another of the ties which binds that nation to the Moslem world.

The law substituting Sunday for Friday will come before the parliament at Ankara within the next few days. Meanwhile the official press has been paying the way with the argument that Turkey cannot afford to lose two business days weekly at a time when the nation is bending every effort to follow up political victories with economic triumphs.

Children, Like Their Elders, Have Moods of Reserve or Gayety

By Lolita

Children, like their elders, have moods of reserve or gayety. A "Play Booklet" by Mrs. Bevena for mothers of pre-school children will be sent free on receipt of a stamped, self-addressed envelope.

Hostess Gowns Often Take Three Quarter Coats

NEW YORK.—(Special Correspondence.)—Why girls don't leave home is explained by many of the new hostess gowns of the season. Our attitude toward such gowns has perceptibly changed. Once they were regarded in much the same light as hardwood floors—nice if you could afford them, but not absolutely indispensable to one's happiness. Today any woman who makes any pretense of entertaining feels a real obligation to possess one of these beautiful creations which she wears when giving a tea or an informal dinner.
